

I watch a waiter bringing allot of food to my Chinese boss. He is actually brought to a small square below a big monument where a gazebo has been installed. My boss understands that they are trying to kidnap him and runs away. He is caught and I rip off his heart which is a piece of garlic.

I am in a car with three girls and stop at a party in the mountains. I have other friends there but I cannot stay as I have killed the girls' parents. I then pretend to go for some grocery with a friend and he drops me in a gas station from where I plan to escape but I have actually forgot my bag.

I am with my stepfather in a big hardware store. He needs a saw and I point a small one on top of his head. There is actually a cheaper one and I go to look for it while he waits in line at the cash desk. I only find some cheap rope and bring it to him but it has a percentage of poisoning material.

I am on a train with a girl getting in an Eastern European country. As she gets off she tells me that all the cities there are nice like in my own country. I then wait to get off in the next city even though it is very small and the driver only suggests me to drink tea there.

A woman is in the press conference of a news presenter and asks him a complicated question. She is actually the daughter of a old movie star who is shown training in a cabaret. Her daughter is also very famous but got hospitalized. All that remains of her is a teeth hanging from a spider net.

I am with my best friend cooking a chicken in the haven and he shows me how another friend harassed him. As the chicken is ready I bring it out and see the friends of the latter playing football. One is wearing fascist boots and scores violently. I applaud even though I am carrying the tray.

I am inside on a old museum that is going to be demolished. I then ask the director to have permission to use it and she granted to me. There is also another artist there and I ask him if he can help me to build an exhibition but he wants to do it together with me and I suggest another room.

I wake up in our new apartment that it is a nice sunny day and jump out of bed but the ceiling is very low and I almost hit my head. I then calm down and seat down to think about my future there. I actually find out that it is too expensive and I will not be able to afford it when I get retired.

I get in a restaurant with my wife and seat next to two skinheads. As they go out to drive around with their scooters I switch their glasses half filled with red wine. As they come back we get two dishes with meat but it looks very old and the waiter has to help my son to peel it off a bone.

I am eating in a garden with my new professors. They are actually debating about a new employee and one of them shows me a newspaper with his picture. It is only an ad and I leave with other people by car. The girl next to me shows me pictures on her phone holding a hand on my pants.

I get to a small restaurant in my native town and order food for my family. It is actually very expensive but I manage to afford it. The owner writes my name down and recognizes my last name. He thinks I have immigrated to Argentina and starts telling me the story of my grandfather.

I am in a church watching a film with my son when my mother comes. She is actually upset that we didn't attend the service. As we walk down to the woods I realize that there is an old friend behind. He is actually with his father on a brand new cabriolet and drives passed us in full speed.

My wife and I meet a couple out of the metro of a very dirty English city. They want to take us to their apartment and we cross a very desolated bridge. As we get on the other side they start walking in an ugly condominium but I stay out to take a video seating on a wall even though it is wet.

I am with my new colleagues on an old iron bridge going to an island. We climb down a ladder and I let a female professor go first. I then get down myself but there is a security check in. The x-ray machines are really big and I try to hurry through them but forget my pouch and have to go back.

I am in my son's old bedroom playing with a small blue balloon. The cat also wants to play with it but the balloon stays in the air. He then jumps high to get it and I am afraid he might scratch me. I then try to leave the room but the balloon also comes out in the corridor with the cat following.

I am watching a film of a sea that is usually cold but is now warm and not too harsh. My new colleagues are seating at the edge of the harbour and the camera starts filming them from left to right. As it gets to the last ones I realize that they are speaking French and are about to go home.

I reach a forest that is getting dark and the police is chasing me. I decide to take the normal road and go around an abandoned fort where the police is pointing a bazooka in my direction. They are actually trying to shoot a big bat on top of a pine tree but he is under an umbrella like shield.

I follow a secretary in an elevator to get a room in her institution. She actually takes me on a floor very high and we find my bag there. My son and I got a bed with another guy in a dark room and I ask for a better one. There are still no other colleagues and I switch to a big room with a window.

I am walking with an old friend in the woods and reach a granite formation. I then show him how a pen he left there the year before has made a hole in the rock. I am actually teasing him but he believes me and wants to try with another pen.

I am in a church attending a service when the priest points me out as his successor. I don't know what to do and start singing. He concludes the service and asks me if I am fine with his decision. I ask him to teach me and he takes me upstairs where giant sculptures of dead people are laying.

I am with a friend in the corridor of an institution and he introduces me to the princess. She is actually very outgoing and wants to dance with us. We then form a small circle but she actually wants us to hug and I try to be delicate. We start rolling on the floor and I try again not to hurt her.

I get to a small harbour to embark on a cruise and notice a big factory. It is where a guy who has my suitcase works but I don't have my phone. He is actually throwing it in a machine to be destroyed and I run to stop him. I manage to do so and he asks me to wait for the next cruise with him.

I am with my new colleagues in a bar after a field trip. My philosophy professor is leaving and takes a picture of me thinking that I am already a famous artist. I then ask him if I can take a picture of him and he consents but he is too pale and my camera takes two pictures without him.

I try to get to my aunt's condominium and have to squeeze though a very tight rolling door. It actually takes me to the garage and I immediately notice that my cousin's car is not there. I then remember that they have just moved close to the train station. It is not far and I start walking there.

I am in our new house and go down to the bottom where I find a small wooden door. It is a window to the garage and I use the actual door to get there. I then start to sandpaper the wooden floors but my wife is also there and get really angry about it. I then leave all to her and go back up.

I am in a mountain pasture peeing with my small cousins and my grandfather behind me. It is time to get in the car and I pull in my small penis while he tells me how they are not so handsome anymore. I then realize that they are three but only two of them are twins and the other is older.

I get to a prestigious gallery to show my work and a young curator calls my name to present to the other artists. We go into a dark room and I try to plug-in my laptop to the projector but realize that there is a live projection of my hands. I then open up my catalogue but cannot find any photos.

I am spending the night in a contemporary museum and decide to check the upper floor. The door is actually open and I get in looking for a nice room where to exhibit but only find a conference room. As I look in other rooms I can only find offices and someone actually talking on the phone.

I am walking in the suburb of a small city and follow up a main road. I then see some teenagers biking down a smaller road and decide to turn as well. As I do so I realize that the name of the road is that of young industrialist and I wonder if it is not enough that he appears in advertisements.

I am walking up a mountain and come to a small garden where an old man is cultivating. As I help him out picking large screws from the earth he suddenly lays down unconscious. I then realize that he is the mother of my stepfather and I call the latter to rescue her but it is an heart attack.

My mother is driving me and my son to the mountains. As I look out of the window at a two star hotel in a old condominium she puts a song from an old cartoon. She then starts singing it for my son and he mumbles with her even though he lives abroad and he has never listened to it before.

A fat father and his son are crossing a small bridge over a gigantic waterfall. As they reach the other side the son realizes that the sea is almost leaping over. There was actually a quite lake there once until it slid into a big cave where the coins of all the dead tourists are still floating.

I am with a feminist waiting in a dark classroom and we start talking. I notice she has allot of tattoos on her bare arms and I show her the one I have under my shirt. She then shows me the one she has on her shoulders and I also show her the one I have in my back even though it is fading.

I am with a guy in a jeep at night in the empty parking lot of an American town. He gets on my seat and I think he wants to fuck me but he stops. He actually wants to share a young Mediterranean slot with me but I don't know how we can practically do it.

I am in a small bedroom at night laying on the bed awake. There is a big TV on the table next to me and I wonder what kind of programs they are playing. I get tempted to see if there is a porn but resist and actually hear my wife trying to unlock the door from the other side.

I am in my new department and hear that the dean is coming to visit. I then go to my office to clean it up but it is really a mass. There are allot of old plants and cloths that it is not mine and I start throwing everything away. As I begin to like it the fire alarm rings and I am the last one to leave.

I am walking in my parents' city and find a really beautiful small neighborhood with plants growing over the old houses. As I walk out of it I realize that it is right next to the main street with big luxury buildings. I then imagine that it cannot be cheap to live in the small neighborhood.

I am with my son by the ocean when a man with an aggressive dog comes. As I start swearing my son falls in the water and I dive in to rescue him. A friend picks us up on a small boat but the dog is also in the water and we try to keep him away with the rows. He drowns and we go for a swim.

I am walking with my wife in town and get in a small café. There are actually second hand clothes for sale and I find some jeans hanging. They are a good American brand and I wish to try them on but then remember that I don't have any money and my wife might get upset with me.

I am laying in bed watching a film with a man and a woman laying in bed. I am actually not tempted and keep rather detached. The woman is still wearing a bra and panties that are white with black spots. As the man tries to take them away I start getting a bit excited but then stop.

I go out of a seminar room that everybody is leaving and go to my new office. I am very tired and wish to be alone and have my lunch but my new supervisor comes in. He also has lunch with him and we start talking about my thesis when two other professors also join with their lunch boxes.

I get in my old university and meet my English supervisor. I want him to talk to my old professors but he is meeting a student and goes by a big window to wait for him. I then seat at the stationary computers and find that the student next to me is using an upgraded version of my little laptop.

I follow two blond girls and a guy in the ocean. The water is warm and they start to swim far out but the guy seats on my back and I can barely crawl. We reach a big black mass sticking out of the water and I fear it is a whale but then feel to tire and get over it.

I look out of a window at a punk walking with his girlfriend. As he gets further I can read the name of a band in the back of his jacket. They actually end up in an hotel where he starts shooting everyone but his girl who runs out on the street and hides under a car.

I am on a small train with a guy who is going to get married. We are actually going to his summer cottage and I only have little money in my jacket. I was worried about it but soon realize that I won't need any money where we are going as there won't be any shops.

I am with a Japanese curator and meet a Chinese lady who tells us all the courses she is teaching. I am actually not interested and start to make fun of their political leader. She reproaches me and I move further in a theater with soldiers parading below. I try to film it but the sun is too strong.

I am in a dark room with an old Turkish colleague tuning a guitar. It is actually a big concert and my guitar is still our of tune. I then have a guy in the band to tune it by smashing it on the floor. I warn him that I still can't play but manage to make a nice arrangement by striking a few cords.

I am in a forest and find a moose track. I start following it and end up on a ridge with the moose coming against me. I move to the side and try to hit it with a glass but miss it. There is a river below with wolves also going the opposite direction. I try filming while they quickly make it over a cliff.

I reach a portal where a girl tells me to stop. She then starts to undress herself but I force through it anyway. I end up in her parents kitchen and switch the battery of a small perfume she has there. I then spray it on me but she comes back saying that it is the wrong one to escape.

I a run in a metro station to get a train but there are too many people and I miss it. I then wait for the next train even though I am not really sure where it is going. I get off and find myself very far out of the city in a park from where I can see the small downtown by a strip of the distant sea.

An hero just adopted a black kid and he suspends him down a deep canyon. The latter lands in a small river below and unfasten himself to go back up. As he is about to climb a beautiful mermaid appears. She looks like his white mother but she is only a bad illusion and he cannot go to her.

I am in my uncle's apartment and get a phone call from my mother. She wants me to come back immediately and help my stepfather. I then get angry with her because she only calls me when they need help but promise that I can come the following day. It will actually be my last day at home.

I am at a lecture waiting for the American president to give a speech. She comes and starts speaking but I interrupt her to make a point I had already prepared. I start by giving a small introduction about a novel but I can't remember the title and everyone starts talking. I yell but to no avail.

I am looking at a black and white map of the world where the forest industry is marked in yellow. As I go through Russia and Europe I end up in a small archipelago on the way to North America. The main island has an America flag on the tallest mountain but this is only two meters high.

I get an e-mail on my phone and try to open it even though it is really small. It is from a man who bought some old leather pants and gloves from us. He wants to know how to take care of them and I ask my aunt who is in our leaving room. She tells me that the guy is actually our neighbour.

I am in a hotel room by the beach and show the sun rising in the sea to my son. It is actually black inside and I realize that it is an eclipse. My son is not looking and I hasten him to do so. He just gives it a short look but then it has become just an half eclipse and the sun is fully reappearing.

I am seating in small park of a nice residential place. I am actually invited to eat at a Polish family living there but I keep it outside drawing. There are other guests going in but I realize that there are no more flights for me and my kid and we will have to stay there till the end of the summer.

I am driving up a small mountain road and show my kid the beautiful landscape. There are many small curves and I realize that the car cannot steer correctly. We actually keep on going a bit off the road and I know that we will be soon reaching the summit and start going downhill.

I show my wife the map of Scandinavia where a conference is taking place. There are arrows showing how they have been moving from one city to another in previous conferences. I then realize that I have registered to go the other way around and that the time of the year is also wrong.

I take a train to a small village in the middle of the forest. I then start walking down a main street and get really impressed by the houses. One of them is built of transparent plastic and another has the wooden roof inclined in the inside but I am not sure it is a good idea for when it snows.

I am with my wife and kid and park at night in front of a cultural heritage site. We then walk down to a café and I let them go upstairs for a drink. I actually find some stickers on the sidewalk and I pick one up. It is like new and I go upstairs to stick on my son's jacket but I can't find them.

I wake up with my family in a mountain cottage. As I go out I realize that it has snowed a bit right above us. I then go back in to have breakfast and find that the owners are there. They want us to come down with the kids and see the newly born calves but they first check if I have diseases.

I am supposed to go hiking with my father but meet him late. We then drive on his pickup and he doesn't seem upset. He is actually quite glad and I realize that he has already been biking early in the morning. We start driving on a dirt road and he doesn't keep on it but gets in a dark forest.

I get to my new university and a colleague introduces me to the dean. The latter has allot of work to do but takes me down the corridor anyway to show me where my classroom will be. As we get in I realize that there are small tables with four chairs fixed around it and it will be difficult to fit in.

I am in a dining room telling my brother-in-law's wife about a battle where a whole regiment was killed. I then talk of the monument that was erected using the soldier's skulls and tell her to search for it on her phone. She can't find it and I look it up for her but can only retrieve the location.

I am in the small garden of a guy from my native village. He shows me some big red flowers growing on a bush and tells me that our ancestors used to eat them cooked. He then picks some yellow leaves and gives one to me. I try it raw but it is tasteless and may even be poisonousness.

I wake up in my old bedroom that my sister is still sleeping. I check her phone for the time and make her really upset. I actually walk out with it and find a nice program to navigate through a hotel. I end up in the kitchen where my stepfather shows me how many amperes his batteries have.

I am in a clinic waiting in line to get a check up. When my turn comes two doctors lift me from under the arms and I complain with my parents about my dislocated shoulder. Inside I stand by another doctor while a sheep keeps coming near me. I am afraid of it but she tells me that I am okay.

I am eating in the university cafeteria with my son when some young people above start asking questions to the students. They also ask me and I start telling them my role but then a guy with rasta hair interrupts me. He claims to have met me already in Germany with an Italian philosopher.

I am checking the blog of a guy who writes different episodes together with a picture. As I am scrolling down I notice an interesting device in a window shop and I try to scroll up again but I can't find it. It was together with an episode of him going out with an important person and I search for it.

I am in an apartment with my wife and an old classmate from university. As I am eating breakfast she goes to kiss him and I get really angry. I smash my plate and go out in the courtyard where my kid is playing. I then tell him to go to school but realize that I also have to go and it is late.

I join an exam and realize that we have to write an answer to our test. There is a package that our Brazilian professor has prepared for each question and I open the first. I find some small coins celebrating the first man on the moon and she makes me understand that I have to write about it.

I am outside of a science museum looking at a tree growing out of another. I then join my parents inside and walk with them in the dark corridors. They are talking shit about my cousin and someone in the back starts offending him. We are first amused but then she starts using heavy words.

I in my parents' basement inserting coins on a machine to reprint some photos of my stepfather who is there working. It doesn't work and he tells me to select just those that I want. I do it on the table but make it dirty with pigment. I spit on a towel to clean it but he sees me and gets upset.

I am out in a terrace overlooking a town at sunset. I call my mother and ask her when she is coming home but she is actually going on a air balloon. I then tell her that I can be waiting in the terrace to see her but she tells me that they are actually sending her very high because she is afraid.

I am driving with my wife and pass by a warehouse where structures has been built to rescue cars from a flood. There are just a few cars and some of them are old models. We also park our car inside and find a pile of trash. My wife picks some boxing gloves for our kid but they are too old.

I am by the entrance of a party looking at all the young people going out. A girl compliments me for my clothes and I complain with a friend about the organizers who are making allot of money. We then go out together and he tells that he went to church four times a week but now it is only two.

I am in a old hotel room with an American guy. He is actually going away and we decide to clean up. I start with an old wooden furniture on top of the bed and think of cleaning all the dust but find that there is loosen corner. I then ask him to help me hit it so that it can get back together.

I am at a big seminar out in a park and notice that my old Chinese boss is in the panel. I am behind other people but he sees me and I pull my tongue. As he is about to pull his tongue I flip my middle finger to fuck him off. He is about to do the same but only shows me his fist not to be seen.

I am in my office adjusting the legs of my desk when my new director comes in. He tells me that I can now sign a document and that he finally understood that I will only have to give up picking mushrooms. As I go to his office to sign it I see that he has a very big mushroom on his desk.

I am walking on a path to my new university when two black guys almost hit me. As I am turning around I find two beautiful blonds behind me. The cutest is actually pushing a stroller and tells me that she will soon graduate. I then joke with her saying that her baby is her graduation present.

I am with some girls on a fast train going along a swamp and see a cowboy crossing it with a group of mooses. I really want to see him and get off at the following station. One of the girls also gets off and we find ourselves all alone in a white metal structure suspended over the opposite swamp.

I am in a big café and a guy behind me asks my opinion about American society. I then explain him that it was great until they stopped getting immigrants. He is satisfied with my explanation and I ask to take a picture of him. He agrees but there is too much sun and the camera doesn't focus.

My son and I are invited at a professor's place. The latter is busy and gives us some cardboard boxes to glue as wagons of a train. As we seat on the floor to do the work he shows as three movies he has rented. They are all from the same directors but one is of them is too violent for my kid.

I am on a southern beach with my Polish friend. It starts to get dark and I set up some wood for the fire but we have no lighter. He manages to turn on a small fire by breaking a stick and I start moving the sand around my fire so that he can move his on top. The sand is actually snow.

I am at my American university with my old colleagues. We decide to get back to business together and I promise to answer one of them about an old recipe. He asked for it writing me on an e-mail address I only use for spams. I try to explain that to him but he replies that I shouldn't have one.

I am in a cafeteria and meet a Chinese girl. I try to explain to her where I was living in China but she is not paying attention and I follow her professor who is a actually Indian. I tell him how the university is declining and go back to the buffet but the girl warns me that the food is not for free.

I am with my kid watching a cartoon where a pair of wolves boxes against a pair of tigers. The latter wins but my kid gets tired to watch. I then show him how the main character escapes on a jet plane and he is ejected out on the sea. His parachute doesn't open and he has to swim to the land.

I am in bed watching a website with naked girls. I try to click on one but the page scrolls down to a woman with a little dick masturbating. She has even warts on her little balls and it is really disgusting. I hear my sister calling me for dinner and I turn off the page but a black woman appears.

I am looking at an old book of an ancient city. As I go through it I find sequences of photographs taken over different cathedrals. I find one cathedral that is very old but it is now surrounded by roads. The photos gets closer and I finally get to see that it stands by the ocean in front of the sun.

I am in the cafeteria of a small hostel trying to book another hostel in a small village where a conference will take place. I then look at a map on-line but cannot find anything. As I try another website there are allot of small ads with naked girls and the hostel owners are right behind me.

I am with my old friends and choose a jacket for one of them. They then drive away without me and I follow their jeep. Two other friends gets dumped and we find that the day is really beautiful and we should go hiking in the mountains but our friend with the jeep is now gone to another friend.

I am in the backseat of my aunt's car and find some nice wool laying on the trunk. I pick some and put it around me but then get suspicious and ask her what material is it made of. She tells me a weird name but I understand that it is asbestos and I can get a lung cancer from it.

I wake up in a new apartment and notice that a short girl is missing. She is already out even if it is cold and I look downstairs. I see her with an old friend and I wonder why they don't get together even if his face is poked marked. She is actually too stubborn and he is looking at other little girls.

I am in a museum and meet two Russian girls. I actually gave one of them an old disc from a German composer and ask a nun permission to go find the disc of a Russian composer with a similar name. As I go back I hear them singing a holly song and I also start singing even though I am far.

I am in a pub with a colleague and order a dish. He actually gets a very small sandwich that costs twice as much. I first think it is only bread but then see that there is at least some filling inside. On our way out we complain we other directors but they tell us that it is at least high quality food.

I am walking down the hills with a Brazilian philosopher. We actually end up on top of a city that reminds me of my hometown. I then show her the mountains in the horizon but she doesn't really pay attention. She actually goes to pee in the bushes even though we are in front of a monastery.

I am attending a seminar when the Philosophy teacher decides to sell our works. One student comes out with a small picture of a student's butt. He gets allot of money and I also get out with my prints. No one really want to buy them but my professor tells me of Pakistani relating to my work.

I am with two old friends going out of a train station. It is already late at night and they assure me that my train is even later. There is actually a friend of a friend that is supposed to meet us there but we find him in the parking lot. He is just a little boy with an old ice cream car from the States.

My friends and I get in a cabin but find the owner inside. We then remove our shoes and seat with him and his wife to have coffee. I actually wonder if he had a knee surgery and he tells me how he went to a bad doctor but then went to a good one. I let him know that the latter is my stepfather.