

I am working in a field with the young daughter of a black woman. She has many more daughters and as the younger ones get tired the older ones come to help. The get tired very quickly and the last one demands that she can smoke the kind of cigarettes her mother buys in a local store.

I am at a party talking to my father about his brother when I realize that we are inside an airplane. He actually pulls the level to take off and rush to put my seat belt. I first think I will be very scared but he just flies very low and in the end manages to land on a parking lot against two cars.

I am looking on a screen at a map of a remote island and see that there are dots on the south-west coast. I click on the one that is more to the north and see that it is just an announcement of a person who is selling an old motorcycle. The other dots are all posts by teenagers sporting outdoors.

I am walking with my partner on a road going uphill and have to move to the side to let an old bulldozer drive by. It actually wants to park right where we are and we move also from there. I then realize that the local municipality has borrowed it from another municipality to deal with the snow.

I am in my uncle's apartment but he is not there and I get to talk on the phone with my father. As my uncle comes back I hand him the phone and he gets to talk to my father after a long time, The connection is bad so I walk outside and explain to my father that my uncle lives on a boat.

I am on a busy street with some friends when an old relatives arrive. I then briefly greet her and just explain my friends who she is but she leaves again. I really wanted to talk to her and start to cry looking at her silhouette disappearing in the crowd. She looked so similar to me and I feel sad.

I am in my Dutch friend's bakery with an Italian guy. He has already some experience with all the machines and put some dough in one to cut it in pieces. I keep an eye on him and see he activates it without closing the lid. It is dangerous but nothing happens to him and the dough is fine.

I am on a hill having a picnic with my family but there is a horse trailer parked in front of us. I then decide to move it further down the hill but as I start pushing it I cannot stop it. I try to move it against the fence but it keeps rolling down. Luckily some guys put stones under the back wheels.

I am in a church with my mother and notice that the service is about to start but there is no one. We also don't attend it and just light some candles and leave. On the bus there is a man dressing like a shepherd and he wants to confess himself. I then send him to the church where I was.

I am in a room with the Russian president and the European prime ministers. They are deciding whether to start a new war against the former and I see the Italian prime minister whispering in the ear of the Dutch prime minister. They decide to go to war but the Russian president disappears.

I am in a Swiss city with a guy who tells me how to live cheaply. He then shows me a not too expensive part of town where there is a public swimming pool and then a ski resort. He then tells me how he usually lays under a tree there to read from a poetry book that is too difficult to understand.

I am walking in a park with my Greek anarchist friend and see that his children are also there with a babysitter. His daughter is actually on top of her little brother and I joke with my friend that she has a Oedipus complex of some kind but he really doesn't understand what I mean with it.

I am walking with some people in the mountains and show them the village where one of my grandfathers was born. It is very ugly and we keep on walking until we reach a staircase the Americans built after the war. We start walking up but it is very scary and my youngest son is also there.

I am in a classroom with two girls laying on their desk with their belly down. On of them gets up and leave and I realize that I am supposed to finish my lecture. I then explain the students that hunter-gatherers dance until the sun rise because then their voices can be heard much further.

I am in a city with a Dutch professor who just hosted my lecture. He wants to show it in his office and I propose to re-edit it. I then leave with all my books in my backpack but it is very heavy and a gang starts kicking me in the butt. I pull my knife out and they run on the other side of a canal.

I am walking in the basement of a big building when a janitor opens the door for me. I end up in an auditorium and take a seat but a girl invites me to explore the top of the building. I am too afraid but then I see through the window that it is suspended with pillars sticking out of the building.

I am biking with a group of friends through the countryside and reach a little village. I then look how beautiful it is with a tower in the middle that looks very old but has been covered with new bricks. As I try to imagine how it would look without them a man points out that my tire is flat.

I am walking with my family on a beautiful path following a mountain precipice. I can see a bridge ahead of us and try to keep with my children but we meet some friends and start talking to them. Our children rush forward and I see that the bridge is not maintained and they could fall.

I am in a restaurant talking to a guy about volunteering for another restaurant on top of a mountain. He then shows me on the calendar that I should volunteer at the end of my summer holiday. I agree but then he tells me that I have to choose four other days to keep the restaurant going.

I am in the square of a little village with a musician I wanted to meet to discuss about my project. His boss also arrives and as they start to talk with each other I check a new email I got on my phone. It is from another person I also contacted to help me with my project and she is very positive.

I am in a cable car with my children but feel afraid of going on top of a lake. I then stay close to them until we reach a city on the other side. The final destination is at an amusement park and I try to understand what other cable car we need to take in order to go up the mountain behind it.

I am biking with a trailer attached behind on a street but see that it is turning into a highway. I then see a pedestrian bridge to cross it and push the bike to the top. I still have to go over a mountain pass to make it home and realize that it has already snowed there and the street is too icy.

I am on the dock of a big lake waiting for the parents of my children's classmates to join me. Some are already calling me on the phone and I call them back to let them know that I won't be able to drive them to the lake because I am already there. They are actually not planning to come.

I am in front of a little shop where I deliver bread and just get two plumbs. I then expect the owner to give them to me for free but he wants to charge me a lot of money. The more I complain the more he charges me and I tell him that I will not deliver bread to him anymore but he doesn't care.

I am with my partner in an American bank and queue up behind a soldier. He just lets us go in front and we just have to wait for another girl to finish talking to an employee. As she leaves he also leaves and we are left in front of a very big microphone. We then keep quiet and just wait.

I am sitting on a bus driving in the middle of the night to a big American city. I actually know that we are approaching one stop but that there is going to be another one more in the middle of the city. I then warn my partner not to get ready and we just let everyone else stand up to get off.

I am in a villa where my old friends are reunited and meet one that used to hate me. He is actually quite nice and we go out to meet the others. I then joke with them that they are all wearing white socks and the shortest takes me by the ankles and manages to pull me up on his shoulders.

I am walking in an empty neighborhood with a very intelligent man who just won a television quiz. I realize I also know another man who won a quiz in his own country and I am about to tell him but he sees a print shop and run to it. I expect it to be closed but he finds it open and enters.

I am in the studio of a British artist who has developed a technique to silkscreen his drawings on t-shirts using a scanner. People comes to his studio to buy the t-shirt and he makes a discount to one of them who chooses not to have any print on the top part. The result is actually quite bad.

I am in a garden reading when my best friend comes with a piece of wood he had engraved for me. It is meant to be used as a holder for my laptop and I want to try it. I then have to cross with my arm a couple that is having an argument and fetch my laptop that is on the opposite side.

I am on a car with a man who is supposed to drive me back up north. We are actually only going for the evening to one of his friends down the coast but he tells me that we will start driving north in the middle of the night. As we argue whether it is a good idea he drives down the precipice.

I am on a rocky beach with the Spanish girlfriend of my Greek friend. She actually goes ahead holding her son on her arms and I try to follow her stepping carefully on the rocks but reach a cliff. I have no idea how she managed to climb it but I try my best and almost make it to the top.

I am going with my family to a zoo but there is a queue and everyone has already booked their tickets. My partner tries to book them on her phone but a woman working there comes to help us. She explains that the children have a discount and think that I am also very old and can get one.

I am in a hotel bedroom and realize that I had to finish painting it but now have to sleep inside it. I already painted most of it in gray but there are still some spots that needs a second hand. I suddenly realize I could sleep in another room that is painted green and check it but there are wasps.

I am on top of a mountain and just lay down to catch some sun. An old friend is also there and comes laying with me. He has been traveling all night to a party but he seems rather awake. As we speak a guy full of muscles also come laying next to us and I am afraid he is homosexual.

I am with my Polish friend in an amusement park. He is not really willing to talk to me and we just get on a bus to bring us back to the entrance. It takes us to a little train that suddenly goes fast down a slope and I look back to see my friend's reaction. He is finally smiling and feeling happy.

I am in a changing room and just open a random door. There is an old lady getting changed and she immediately calls the security to arrest me. I then hide inside another changing room behind some hanging clothes and the security checks inside without see me. I then climb up to sneak out.

I am in a public toilette when a skinny Chinese woman comes next to me. She is very ugly but she presses her breast against me. She almost has no breast and her nipples are hard as stones. I find her very disgusting but she anyway wants me to take her from behind and bends over the sink.

I am with my partner visiting the newly renovated house of some friends. It was an easy job and we get inspired to also renovate our barn in the mountains. As I go inside to check more carefully I see that the plaster does not shine in certain places where my friends just did it by themselves.

I am on a truck transporting three long pillars of granite. The driver makes it through a check-point and starts downloading the pillars in a square but doesn't want to use the crane and the truck falls on the side. One pillar rolls down and he uses the crane to get a second out and flip back up.

I am in the house my fat Dutch neighbours just bought. I actually want to help them pouring concrete and check out the attic where the children sleep. It is very run down but the father shows me how he wants to pour cement in the garden. It is not straight and the concrete will run down.

I am queuing outside a zoo with my stepsister's children. There is another girl with children queuing in the front and I am intrigued about her green eyes. As my stepsister joins us I realize that she is a former classmate of the green eye girl. I even get introduced to her and we start chatting.

I am in the city below our mountain village. There is a guy living there and I tell him how the only thing that I miss in the city is a place where to swim. He then takes me to a little river that was unknown to us. People are swimming and we also let ourselves being pushed by the current.

I am in an Indian village with another European and we demand some bread slices from a street vendor. He gives us some but we want more and then we start running down a street but end up at a police station. The cops are busy interrogating another man and we just leave unnoticed.

I am walking in a forest and realize that a friend bought a cabin there with a river next to it. It is very small but I regret that we did not also buy our house there since the children can at least play in the water. As I walk forward I notice that the river get bigger and it is even possible to swim.

I am with a girl walking next to a camera shop. There is a cheap one for sale and the Russian owner invites me to check it out. I then go in and try to see whether I can use it for my project. As I am about to buy it I find a way to turn it on and I can see that the pictures are too wide.

I am with my partner visiting the house next to ours. There is a big fireplace made of marble and I realize that the house is much more elegant than ours. As we walk out with the real estate agent selling it I tell him that by coincidence my partner's oldest brother bought when we bought ours.

I am walking on a small road in front of a lot of gardens closed up with fences. They even have fences on the top and I realize it is against birds. An old man has covered his garden entirely metal roofing and the fence is made with a semi-transparent plastic against which he has all his tools.

I am in a cafe with the mother of one of my youngest son's classmates. She just gave her daughter to another parent and she realizes that he might not know where her house is so that he can drive her daughter back home. I then remember that I once saw that parent picking up his kid there.

I am driving my van in a parking lot when another van moves out and leaves a beautiful spot facing a rocky beach. I then open the trunk and just sit down to look at the scenery but some guys start playing frisbee. I start watching them instead and make fun of whoever lets it fall down.

I am in an art academy talking to a French artist. he invites me to the screening of a movie and I sit next to a girl who starts squeezing herself against me. She is really ugly and the movie just shows a horror scene after the other. I then decide the stand up and pretend to get a glass of water.

I am sharing a taxi with the Italian fascist leader. I tell her that I was just in contact with her brother who opened a restaurant in the mountains. She then invites me to her apartment but I have to pee go in her bathroom. There are two squat toilettes but I am not sure which one to use.

I am walking with my youngest son across an empty road and end up in a park where I meet an Italian old man I know. He is actually much younger than I remember and I tell him that we learned to bake pizza. We did not get to eat it and I suggest him to invite us to his place to eat lunch.

I am with my youngest son in a building looking for a bathroom. I actually need to pooh and finally find one on the bottom floor but one girl runs in before me. She is very quick and I get to go in right after her. As I start poohing I realize that she just poured a pink foam that is now floating.

I am walking on a mountain path with a group of people and find another path going up to a climbing spot. A woman and I decide to try it and find that it is made with cheap wooden panels. We manage to climb across it but realize that the other people are not so trained to do it like we did it.

I am in a meeting room with two professors discussing about a lecture one of them them has to do about the environmental movement. She suddenly decides that I should do it even though I have less than an hour to prepare myself. I then just use my brain to come up with good references.

I am driving a big jeep but there is a lot of traffic in front of me. I then try to turn to the left thinking that I can avoid it but I am not sure if that road can take me where I have to go. Also I see the police lights behind me and I realize that I am without seat belts but I manage to put them on.

I am with my partner in the newly opened Latino restaurant of a Guatemalan friend. It is very crowded but he comes to hug me and then takes me to the kitchen where there is a sofa we can sit. As we do so I see that we are just attached to another little restaurant that is also very crowded.

I am in a van with my children and reach an airport. From there I can clearly see our barn in the mountains but they cannot. I then zoom in with my camera to show them but we are now under the mountain and all I can see is a guy talking to our old neighbour who seems to be doing well.

I am on a bus and realize that the driver is sitting in the middle and facing backward. She can even talk with a local driver and I am quite impressed but then realize that we are standing still. I then go on foot ad meet my best friend who is detonating a bomb using a lighter but he is not afraid.

I am in the field where I want to build my project cathedral. As I start to walk away from it I decide to go back and measure with my steps the distances. There are already a lot of trees and I cannot find the field anymore. I see that it could be on the road below but there are a lot of shops.

I am in a meeting with some fascist politicians who wants to hear about my project. One of them shows me on his phone the stupid work of a Russian artist and I feel very fed up. I then look at their red eyes and suggest we just wrap up for questions. We do so but they immediately attack me.

I am in a kitchen ordering things a woman has to pick up for me. Another woman is also there and asks her to get a goat a fourth woman promised her before she died. I also want some goats to eat up our grass in the summer but ask the first woman if she wants to keep them from the fall.

I am walking up the stairs of our Dutch house when I meet a Brazilian woman who should be already back to her country. She is very sick but anyway starts hugging me and we end up in bed together. As I suck her breast I realize she is made of plastic but she keeps on saying she is fragile.

I am in an empty building with my stepfather and my uncle. The latter had an office there but is now closing up and we help him to move hall his stuff. I spot some nice things I could use and place them in a box but my uncle warns me that the box has to be brought home with him.

I am with one of my twin cousins on a carnival truck passing just other the terrace where his brother is sitting motionless. As I turn around I see a girl in another truck kissing him and I tell his brother to give her his business card so that she can contact him but he just gives her money.

I am in a park meeting with the members of a crew who are supposed to shoot a movie. My Russian friend is also there wearing a ski outfit so that he can easily moves with the camera. We meet up like soldiers and everyone clasp their boots together. I then realize I am also wearing ski boots.

I am in a playground with my Dutch musician friend and get very annoyed when he starts using a metal straw to make music on the metal structure of a ride. I am actually inside it and walk out but then realize the music is actually very good and he is more skilled than a classic composer.

I am in the middle of a forest with our van and have no idea how to drive out of it. I then look at my phone and see that there is a dirt road that can lead me to a highway but it is all jammed with abandoned cars. It is the only option and I decide to try anyway even though I might get stuck.

I am in our Dutch house when the doorbell rings. My children go to open up but then they close the door again. It is actually an old family friend they don't know but she manages to open up the door again and gets in with another family friend. They both did not age but I believe I did.

I am in my old carpentry listening to my colleagues complaining about how our two bosses have built offices instead of a butchery. They actually come around and I try not to e seen by them but it is too late. they also find it very awkward that I am there and I slowly try to leave the building.

I am on a hill with many tall sculptures and make it to the top where there is an Austrian girl waiting on her bike. She actually wants to hold my hands and tells me that she is there to heal me. I let her do it but realize that she has a lot of mental problems and I am the one healing her.

I am walking on a sidewalk with my partner and see a cigarette package. As I am about to pick it but a black homeless lady does it before me. She actually keeps on following us and in the end we decide to run on the other side of the street and hide between the jackets of a second hand shop.

I am watching a movie about a guy talking with his girlfriend to some gangsters in their van. As they are about to get off the guy gets a hat from one of the gangsters but the police is watching them from another van and recognize the hat. They then get ready to wall them inside their hotel room.

I am at a party with some Dutch friends who are into hallucinogens. They explain me that there is one kind that can last for a whole year but it is as big as the little table in front of us. I then make a joke and invite my friends to start eating the table with me and they get on their knees to do it.

I am with an artist who is going to host me for the night in his parents apartment. They only allow him to use the terrace and we walk up a spiral staircase to reach it. There are many doors and he tells me not to open them. We finally reach the floor of the terrace and I realize he is queer.

I am with my partner in front of a university building and she invites me to go inside and look for a program to become an art critic. I do so and find an advertisement for the right one but then I see that the tuition fee is as high as the total value of our house. I then decide never to look again.

I am living in an island and see that my Polish friend arrives with a ferry. He is together with a group of people he is taking around for some field recordings. I then approach him to give him a hug but he is very cold and doesn't even want to talk to me. At last he says we can maybe talk later.

I am in a cozy room with the father of a kid going in the same class as my daughter. The latter is not playing with his kid but he anyway insists that we should meet every week. I actually remember that will not be able to do it in the coming week because I have to attend an architecture lecture.

I am walking in an old mall with a curator showing all the art works they have inside. One corridor has been completely destroyed and covered with screens playing videos showing the debris. The screens are old and I can hear the sound of the electronics running it. I really don't like it.

I am talking to my baker friend about the delivery I have to make for him every week. It is a long ride all the way on the border with another region down south but he thinks it is not so long. I then show him on the map how the village I have to reach is very isolated. It is worse than I thought.

I am watching a movie about a man who is being chased by two thugs. Luckily there are some guys dressing like nuns there to protect him and he can keep walking in peace on a sidewalk where there is a tiny message folded on the ground. He picks it up and reads what his girl has to tell him.

I am in a restaurant and watch the cooks working on some dough. It just came out of the freezer but they are able to shape it into some loafs. My best friend is also there and we go to see how they are being cooked in the oven. They look very good and I order one to eat as soon as it is ready.

I am in a little village with some interaction design students and follow them to a cliff where they have built a light facing the sea. It powers itself with the sun and projects a caravel but only when it is daylight. It does not make any sense and their teacher comes to move it on the side.

I am on an airplane and find a seat next to a fat Chinese woman. I get ready to work on my project but the hostess tells me that I have to make space for the woman next me. I just stand up and go to the toilette but realize that my laundry is ready and I have to find a place where to hang it.

I am in the kitchen of an apartment with my father. The windows are open and I ask him how is the weather in his Canadian city. I expect him to say that it is cold but he tells me that it is still warm and the winter has not started. I even find a booklet on the table where he takes notes.

I am in condominium with other students and really like to be among them but then pay attention to the ceiling and see that the cement is very old. I then wonder how long it is going to last and realize I am even supposed to spend the night there. I fear it will start collapsing in no time.

I am in an auditorium with my mountain community. They are discussing a new trail they promoted in the south of our village and I see the possibility of doing the same to the north. I want to promote the idea but only the old people are interested and the young ones are falling asleep.

I am in a dancing room ready to dance when a very fat guy comes forward with an accordian. I am not able to judge whether he is good or not but at last he gets better enough to dance. I want to take a photo of him but my camera zooms too much and I can only see the patterns of his shirt.

I am with a group of monsters at a coast and see an island ahead of use. We decide to go there but the biggest monster doesn't know how to swim and we let him flow on a big wooden anchor. He uses it as a scooter and goes fast to the island but there are only cliffs all around it and he crashes.

I am in a small room with my children and realize that we are inside a bigger room where there are other children playing. I tell my children to go play with them but as I open the door the other kids outside get inside and start looking for candies. I then try to explain them how bad they are.

I am in a square with my work van and realize that it is full of grocery. I then start downloading it but it is too much. I get my boss to help me but he just want to drive with me up the mountains. There are two girls walking on the road and I hear them talking about a dance that is coming up.

I am in a big studio with the husband of an Australian woman building a metal table. He has all the pieces on the ground but I have to walk through them and accidentally touch a piece. It was in a very precise position and he now has to take all the measurements again to put it back.

I am home with my baker friend and prepare coffee for him. I then sit on the same table and he starts asking me questions but I suddenly realize I have to add a date on the calendar. I do it on my phone and he gets angry I am not paying attention to him. He leaves without saying goodbye.

I am in a restaurant having dinner with my former parents-in-law. They also speak English and remember how good I was to learn Swedish with a gardening book. My ex is sitting next to me and pats me in the shoulders to confirm what they are saying even if I thought she is mad with me.

I am in a small supermarket searching for big water bottles. They have none but the owner orders three for them and I go out to wait but still feel incredibly thirsty. There is another supermarket at the end of the street and just go to that one. They only have juices but I decide to go for one.

I am on a train with a fat man discussing how we can reach an old city. There is no direct connection and there is even a strike. We then decide to just get off and rent a car and get off. I let him walk behind me since I don't have a ticket and there are many gates we need to open with his.

I am walking in a city with my youngest son. We reach a bus station and I start to cross but then realize that we need to keep on the other side. As I turn back I see my son who keeps walking on the sidewalk. I tell him to cross but he does it when a bus is coming. He manages without injuries.

I am taking people to visit the ark after a long time I haven't been there. The architect who collaborated with me is also there but we notice that the stainless structure I built in the middle is broken in half. I then search for the broken pieces but cannot find them. It must have been a lightning.

I am on a deserted hill with the twin brother of an old friend. I actually had a dream about the latter and the brother asks me to interpret it. I then start jogging and tell him that when the leopard is quite the wolf is aggressive and vice-versa. I explain that it is in the character of his brother.