

A friend and I get in a restaurant to have an early dinner. It is still closed but the owner invites us to stay anyway. He is going to make pizza for us but we could have gone to a different place nearby for that.

I get in a supermarket with the American President and look for something to eat. I then think to get some fruit yogurt but the shelves are almost empty. There is only one package with strawberry that is broken and we go for two of vanilla instead.

I am with an American couple and walk inside a large room with wooden floor. There are even lines of wooden goats and I realize that it is were the Rabies seat. One of them is for their kids and the American woman stumble upon it being foretold by a Rabi that she is going to get hurt.

I am walking with my parents in the courtyard of a big mansion when an old friend comes out of the basement. We greet each other and he tells me that he is now cementing a small room. It is not commercial like the others and he even has a girl to assist him.

I am walking with my best friend and his old girlfriend who came from Canada to visit him. As we are getting in an aquatic theme park to swim she starts complaining that she traveled a long way and he doesn't even care about her. I look at her and find her much skinnier and more appealing.

I am in an old cathedral and hand in my test. The teacher then starts to review all the tests together with us students. The last question is about a song that starts with a V. No one guessed and we also listen to my recording but I realize that the song is actually saying something else.

I am with my relatives biking on a asphalted big road in the desert. As we go up a small hill my uncle says how easy it is. I am actually only walking with my kid on one side and pushing myself with a stick on the other. I then start to think how I can be the fastest.

I am with a friend and meet our old professor in a cafeteria. I then open up my big hot dog to explain him where I live. There are two sausages and I write on them to show him where I lived in two different Dutch cities.

I get with a family to a mechanic looking for a moped to buy. As I am going around the father tells me that it is the second time we are there and we should buy the one we first looked at. I then give the mechanic a paper bag and get on the scooter but it is meant for the small son.

I go downstairs to my step father who is actually like a classic robot. As he starts showing me the bathroom improvements he is doing I start hitting him with an hammer. I manage to brake a round glass and pull off the microprocessors inside him. I then place them in a box with several others.

I am walking with some friends in an old town and meet a Norwegian friend. She is very happy that we remembered about our meeting as she was worried that we wouldn't show up. It was only a coincidence that we met her but I don't tell her.

A friend and I stop at a fruit stand and I order a bag full with small peaches. It is already alot of money but I also order some watermelon slices. The price doubles and I just walk away to buy from a street seller elsewhere.

I just get to France with my family and my wife complains that there is too much smog and we should leave. I then wonder about her meeting but she already had it. As we agree to leave we meet my Russian friend with a scarf on his bold head. He knew I was coming but waited to contact me.

I am in the old garage of our compound swiping the dust off the dirty floor and collecting it on one side. My old boss is also there and as I go greet him neighbor puts back the dust on the floor. It is actually sand for the icy winter.

My son is playing outside on a mold but the wood gets loose and the cement is not yet dry. An artist friend then dresses up like a super hero with a yellow mantel and a black swim suit. I find a bent screw on the floor and assist him to put the wood back.

I am seating with an old friend out of an American university when my wife's boss comes looking for a folder. It is the permission to park his car but he can't find it. As he drives out his old pickup we help him to look for old parking receipt along the street but can't find even them.

I am with my best-friend in a supermarket and ask a lady working there for a place where to ice skate. It is very far but there is a ice pool in the supermarket with small lobsters. We then start picking a few and as I think that they could be too expensive my best-friend puts them in his basket.

I am out of an electronic shop with an Indonesian friend. It is very crowded and there are some black people in front of us. He starts shouting with his fist up and calls them nigers but them show them that he is also very dark.

I am on the bus with my Polish friend and his girlfriend. We finally come to a big mall and I get out but they don't. I then get back in to make them hurry and find that he is drunk and she is trying to get him out. I help her to pull and his pants rips showing his naked ass.

A friend and I are at the airport when my old director comes. He got a straight flight while we will have to make a transfer. I actually look at the ticket I just got and find that it won't depart until early in the morning. I check the schedule and see that I should have departed in the evening.

I am back to my native village and visit my old compound. As I walk through the corridor inside I realize that the walls are made of real rocks. I then take the first staircase up but there are other ones and have to follow the signs. Old family friends are also going to my parents and I follow them.

I walk up that it is still night and find my father standing at the door. I then hug his small and weak body and we seat in the living room. Soon the others also come and my son starts jumping where my father is. I then tell him to look who is there and he moves to my side afraid of my father.

I am walking with a friend couple along the wall of a big fortress even though they didn't want to come. The woman actually tells me that they are allergic to fortress. It cannot be cured ant it is actually very contagious when it is manifested. She should have told me.

My mother is taking me to my sister wedding that is already too late. She is talking with her husband on the phone and I bite her arm. As we reach a country house the wedding is already finished and I fight with my best friend who is upset with me.

I take my kid to a mountain restaurant of an old relative where he starts playing with the other kids who dropped an helmet down the valley. We look at the many clouds and go inside. Before we live again I go in the kitchen and eat some small tomatoes without asking.

I am in my parents' basement telling another doctor how bad my step father is. He actually tells me that at least professionally he is really good. He is not a simple doctor but was upgraded to be a master.

I am sleeping in the same room with other guys. My neighbour is only two beds away and I think of her but then walk out thinking that I will never betray my beautiful wife. I actually meet her and carry her around me as we were in love.

There is a reunion out in a small square and I seat with the other people to film. My camera screen gets actually white and I cannot see the recording time. As I pull the screen down and up again to have the colours reappearing a guy tells me of a better camera with buttons on the screen.

I am with my mother driving up a mountain. As we reach the round top I notice that it has also been cultivated in small sections. One of the sections shows a steep tractor track while another has many different plants growing in vases. We get off the car and decide which fruit we should pick.

Two girls are by a long black board where three of my drawings have been selected and reproduced in large scale. They actually don't like the first two and cross them. They then start drawing two others of my drawings which they remember by hearth.

I am in my room when the Polish coordinator comes telling us that she doesn't like the way we are working. There are actually two more persons we can select to make our group better. One is an old student and the other is an old friend. I select the latter only because he is a male.

I am bringing a shopping chart with old bread back to our apartment when I meet the old girlfriend of a good friend going there. She has a big back up and is very tire of carrying it. I then offer to bring it on the chart and she starts taking out allot of cookies and other things she brought for us.

I take a fascist classmate to our Chinese apartment and we start being good friends for the first time. As we wait for the old elevator I notice that my car is parked badly. I then go to park it behind the compound but can't start it. I then accelerate so fast that the side crashes on the cement wall.

I look at a black website of a French small car that is still affordable. At the bottom I find that the actual dealer is a famous journalist. There is even his phone number to contact him and a small animation in the bottom corner showing that the quality of the car can only be guessed.

I am with two other friends bathing by the walls of an ancient citadel. I go up with one of them and make it to the port but an Arab life guards tells us that they are closing and we need to go around all the walls. I then insist and they tell us to hurry through but our other friend is still bathing.

I get in the living room of my parents' mountain cottage and find no one but many cats of different kind and age. I try to kick them out but it doesn't work. I then go upstairs with the newspaper and read that we even have a full grown tiger living with us.

I am biking with my natural father up hill to my grandmother afraid to be seen together. He has a racing bike while I have a female bike with my son in the back. I anyway go faster and reach the garage door first. My father gets angry and wants to smash my camera but I calm him down.

I am home at my grandparents putting my clothes in the suitcase when my cousin comes. We haven't seen us for a long time and we hug. She then asks me if my parents hurt me also inside and I start crying.

I am walking on a main road listening to the song of an old veteran. He firsts sings about being the last one alive and then starts mumbling a strange name. It is actually that of a luxury shop which is about to open. I get in from the side and find a group of a dutch kids in the dark kitchen.

A friend just found a publisher in a small art fair and I also go around the stands to find one. I get upstairs where a gallerist is helping two young artists putting up an installation in a small room. I pull out my drawings to show her but she is too busy painting a white board with a ear top.

I am at my sister's wedding ceremony when the fancy priest comes down to preach among us. He praises my parents but I realize that two seats are empty because my wife was offended by my mother. I then flip my middle finger at her and stand up in rage to lift the benches upside down.

It is getting dark and I walk with old vandal friend in the old city. I carry a baseball bat with me but think that it could be too much to beat people with that. We then decide to use it to trash the cars that we find parked.

I am running with a wild man on a forest trail and ask him if he sees a hill approaching. He doesn't and I run in front of him coming to a small river instead. We then start walking on the floating timber and have to help each other to get from one to the other.

I take a Polish girl to the gas station where I have set up a table to draw when it closes but it is too dark. We then walk back on the road but she is upset because I have been helping the farmers to put nets around the cherry trees. I then let her be and go back to my drawings.

A friend shows me an invitation to a show where the work of an old boxer with my last name is presented. The gallerist has also wrote me a personal e-mail where he tells me to come as our work is related. I show it to my friend but avoid the last part where he wrote me that I was rejected.

I am skiing with a couple but wait for them below. I can't find their car in the parking lot and think that they have already left. The guy actually comes alone and tells me that they managed to ski several times and also to bring his girlfriend home.

I am out of my sister's compound looking at her balcony. She is now married but has taken our step father's last name. I then ask her why she didn't take her husband's last name but she starts looking at the balcony with me without answering.

I am walking in the suburbs and feel very thirsty. I pass by the entrance of a public swimming pool and find an ice-cream fridge with drinks. There is a small one with strawberries and I go for it but have to cross all the swimming pool to find the cashier where to pay.

The old director of a charity center has prepared food for us in my parents' old kitchen. I put olive oil on the salad and she praises me to always have the right amount. I then place the pot with tomato sauce on top of another pot and come with a spoon to add water to it.

I am biking up hill with a friend but feel very weak. As we get into a town we find another friend in the middle of the road dressing like a military. He has removed the bike sign to another village and uses it to hitchhike there. I stop close to him to film the main road but too many are on my way.

We get on a bus and my best-friend is chased by an American girl who wants his address. She also comes to me and my sister. I draw on the mirror that we are twins and ask her where she leaves in America. She tells me on the South West and I tell her that we live opposite on the North East.

I am on my way to a party and meet an Australian couple. They have many things including a box with Santa Claus hats. They want me to wear one and I understand that it is winter in their country but my party is very serious.

It is a summer evening and I am walking with my best-friend down a ski slope. We are actually inside a horse fence and I get to the gate to cross it. I stand on the wood and walk over holding my balance but repeatedly touching the electric thread. I find my friend in the village below drinking.

An old friend and I are dancing a waltz with many other persons. We have to dance together because there are no girls available but when the music stops I loose track of him and a girl asks me to dance the next one. She also lost her boyfriend but have no problems dancing with me.

I am in an hotel room waiting for my wife. As I go to the bathroom I suddenly feel very excited to have to spend the night alone with her. I look at my naked chest on the mirror and start masturbating until I come.

I am jogging with my senior colleague and his boys. As we come to a crossing we start going on the side moving our arms and legs up and down to protect them. We then start going up hill and do another exercise with our arms. I want to tell him the muscle with our using but say Palestine.

I am with a group of artists that should go for some days in Tuscany for a residency. I then look at the map where exactly we should go and see that the area of interest have been highlighted in yellow. I find several cities and see that Tuscany is actually all yellow but my area is all colorless.

My friends and I get to a guest house in the mountains but no one answers. I see a light on and open a high window. I then scream inside and a girl comes to open. She talks to one of the girls and I get in saying that there is no problem if she wants to be my girl. She accepts and follows us.

I get some marinated fish from a friend who wants to share it with me. I then find a bowl in the kitchen and put it inside but there is a yellow medicine. I add water and it starts sparkling allot. I taste a piece and find that it is a little too sweat but it hasn't changed too much.

I am driving with some foreign friends to a lake below my native mountains. As a British guy insists to do some mountain biking there I have to run back and fetch a pillow cover that flew off the car roof. We also have a mattress that is hanging on one side and could fall anytime.

We are home of a famous musician and my best-friend plays a soundtrack he made for a film. He tells him to work more on it and we go to the living room where my Polish friend plays his music video. It is a montage of many other videos and shows a white man being dragged by a black man.

I am brushing the curly hairs of a girl making them flat. She wants to be with me but her boyfriend takes her. She then pretends to have an invisible boyfriend and he lets her go. One of her friends then comes to me saying that I have to provide a house for us. I show her mine in a catalogue.

I got accepted in a university which is actually a castle on top of the mountain. A friend seems really excited as it is a very beautiful place with a beautiful ancient city below. The architecture is actually really nice with big arches and towers but I don't want to go.

I am in my parents' old basement going out for a party when an old student calls me. There is no one that is going to cook for the class tomorrow and he has decided to be the cook. I then go upstairs to give him the number of the coordinator but end up in an old city going uphill.

I am in a shop with several stands and find that the same camera I have is for sale. It's a special offer with two different lenses. One looks like a horn and I think it is a bad deal but then move and find that the other lens is for taking professional films. There are already students trying it out.

I am in a small living room with my new supervisor and his team. As I keep eating a fruit salad they ask questions to me and my Norwegian colleague to see if we can be part of them. The supervisor says that he likes a team of French writers. I just read the book but I can't remember the name.

I am walking with some American students in the city they are studying. They just changed to a prestigious university and shows me where it is going to be constructed. It is a political choice and they will have to destroy allot of old skyscrapers. They actually like their previous university better.

We are on a small polluted beach and my wife shows how clean it gets after a metal bridge. I can see sharks right in front of us and I take her in a shop selling wooden puppets. They work with the wind blowing through the window. I am amazed but realize that one of them is a real woman.

The next football championship is going to be in an Italian city and the female players from around the world dance in a circle. I photograph them really close and when they tell me not to I take pictures of their feet. I then look at the police march and encourage the veterans behind to go to war.

An old friend and I are seating in a small square and start getting served free food. Different people from different countries come with a new plate but it is always based on rice. When the salad comes I feel very full but get some to eat anyway.

I am dragging a surf to an Indian friend even though I am late. On the way I also find his girlfriend and we take the elevator together but I have to fold the board which is actually an inflatable. There are other girls but they decide to walk upstairs. The elevator starts going up with the door open.

I visit a friend at the gym where he works. He invites us to step on a long rolling carpet where all the equipment is. I step on but the equipment in front of me has large fans blowing. The carpet starts rolling very fast and I have protect myself from other equipment approaching.

I am watching TV when my father-in-law suddenly puts a yellow liquid in my son's mouth. It is very strong and I hurry to fetch a bottle of water from my mother-in-law approaching with a large tray. The water is sparkling and I have to fetch a glass with water from the tab.

I look at the program showing the land where a football player grew up. There is a small field but everything else is hilly and dry. There are some excavations and I think they are to build a larger football field but when I look inside I see the big head of a dinosaur. He is alive but can't get out.

A group of American Indians chase some wild horses and catch one with a gun shooting arrows. They then get on top of a hill but there are white soldiers who starts throwing big spears at them. The Indian chief then kills one with an ax and the white soldiers put forward a fat guy to be killed.

I am in a psychiatry clinic with other famous people wearing sun glasses. They are taking us out for a field trip and we run to the classroom to get some shopping bags for the food. I already have two but they are broken and I also go to steal it from a desk. Outside there is actually an entire roll.

My friends and I bring a ticket machine inside an empty metro. We get to the second floor and find that there are actually soldiers waiting. It actually starts going and we worry not to have the ticket. I get off at the first station and wait for the next one.

I am waiting for the metro looking at cigarette packages on the dark rails blinking red. Two girls ask me where I am from. I tell them that I am moving to America and they are also moving to the same city. They are going home packing and one of them lay down to show that she is without bra.

A kidnapped girl is left on an old expensive car in the bushes with her face all broken. A woman finds her and try to help her. She tries to comfort her by showing her the pictures she found in the trunk of the beautiful island where she was held kidnapped.

My friend and I reach an island at night and look for another island where the public boat doesn't go. We can see it with the new day. It has a beautiful beach and churches all around. I swim there but my friends don't come and the sun gets too warm. There is a low tide and I can't climb back.

I get a ride from the pilot of the airplane I just flew with. She tells me that she can get really sleepy during the flight and has to use a special device. We stop to eat at a gas station and I ask her which phone card should I get. She tells me one cheap kind and I actually have the money to buy it.

My step father and his arrogant friends are going biking and I go to fetch my bike in the garage. When I get back I find him surrounded by bad guys looking at his expensive bike. I then push them away and take him in the garage. There I find an old baseball bat and get out to beat them.

The Pope is in town and wants to meet me that I play the percussions. I then get in a public bathroom to wash my armpits and then get out on the main staircase with my kid. He is already leaving but stops to give us his benediction. He smiles with his teeth out like a German and then leaves.

I am in a small garden when a small girl comes at us holding a small scythe. A guy promptly gives me an ax to defend me. As she starts hitting with both arms I run away afraid to hurt her. Latter the guy comes to me with a cut in his forehead saying that he knocked her out with a hammer.

I meet my friends in a street corner. They actually have some Jewish friends and we are all wearing their round caps. My best-friend is with his girlfriend and tells me to meet them later at the usual bar. I have never been there and don't think to be up that late.

I follow an Italian guy to the beach and find the sea quite calm. We get in that I still have the camera on me. I get out that it still works. Meantime the guy starts talking to some girls laying in front of us. He shows them a projection of a naked woman doing a mud bath.

I am in a terrace putting onions inside a cargo when an American professor arrives with his two assistants. He tells me how once he had a lecture for the Jews and they became soldiers. I then tell him how I also had a lecture but for the Arabs. As I say the cargo moves even if it is half empty.

My Chinese chauffeur is driving to a crossing when two policemen make him sign to turn right. He starts driving on the new road but I realize that they were thinking us going to the Great Wall. I then tell my chauffeur and he turns around with no hesitation.

I come to a small box-like church constructed by a famous architect. The altar is right at the entrance and it is very decorated. I find a projection of my video right on the side. It shows a beach where I just planted a tree. The next scene shows my hands in the sea while they are getting washed.

I am at a library reading a censured book when the librarian comes to me. She thinks I am a tourist and wants to give me some tips. I pretend to be one and get my map out. She then tells me of a big park with allot of grass and marks it on my map. I would need a car but I don't have one.

I am out on a road talking with some girls. I tell them of my trip through North America and one of them starts listing different cities that I never heard of. Mean while a guy comes with our fake visas to actually live in North America. I look in my passport but only find a scribble.

I get in my new office when a little girl starts playing a song with her mobile. I then take out my mobile to annotate the song and curse through a map. I should try to locate a Southern city in China but I am in Europe and have to go through all the Russian border crowded with other cities.

I am in my old bedroom with a female newspaper on the desk and think of masturbating when my mother comes. It is actually my wife and she lays in bed with me. As we make love I use the Internet to translate dirty words in her language but only finds normal ones.

I am walking on a Chinese street when a group of cooks passes by me carrying a box of ice. One of them picks with his free hand a shrimp of a street seller and eats it. I am actually in front of my boss' office and I put his mug in front of the door. He sees me and tells me to stop but I run away.

I just got an old video-game console and my Japanese friend hurries inside a bus to download some programs for it. It might already be too late to download them for free but he anyway gets on a special website. He finds a video-game and starts downloading it but it is actually for computers.

An old friend and I are walking in an ancient capital and hear performing inside a building. It is a school with many classrooms and we get in a little one where the students are performing a pop song. There is a blond girl with blue eyes and I keep staring at her. She recommends us a mall.

I am in a park with my small Asian wife on top of me. She tells me that she use to like it in the ass and I penetrate her there but my penis top is too big. She then keeps biking up hill carrying our child in the front seat. We finally reach the top and start biking down in the city over another path.

I am in a small store with some old friends and meet a very old friend. I talk in dialect and ask him if he doesn't recognize me. I then show him my son and wife on a corner. We should give five in a special way but only my other friends know it.

I am on a beautiful beach that the sun is setting and the sea is calm. I wish to swim with my friend but they tell us that they are coming to pick the laundry. We then follow a guy and a girl back. I keep close to the latter smelling her perfume but she is actually a Muslim.

We are on a sidewalk in front of a mall seating in a circle with a doctor friend. He came to make us a free check and goes around each one of us to measure our breathing. As it gets my turn he really praises me for my good conditions.