

I am in an apartment going through a selection of art works projected on the wall. I am quite disgusted by them and I open the main door to spit. It is very dark outside but I can see the spit very well. It is white and divided in many parts each representing the art works I was trying to get rid of.

I am in a train station looking for a train to go west. I see a train coming and I just take even though I don't know the destination. It actually stops in the middle of a field and I cross it. I reach a small river and walk on the edge to an ancient village but I can't find the name of it.

I am in carrying my new born son through a small city at night and finally find a small hotel. We actually get in from one of the windows and go to the reception to book for one night. It is quite cheap but I realize that there is a murderer who is trying to kill us and I close all of the blinds.

I am outside of a condominium and realize that my bike are out in the courtyard. They are getting quite wet with the rain and I decide to move them inside. The terrain is very muddy but as I go close to one of the bikes I realize that it is totally fine and it doesn't need to be taken inside.

I am in an apartment and realize that it is quite big and I should rent a few rooms. I then go to the kitchen and realize that I am married to a Thai girl. We already have a baby and I try to caress her but she gets a nerve attack. I then realize it could be a genetic disease and affect our daughter.

I am at my parents' old house and follow my sisters to the garage. I want to travel with them to a restaurant but the cars are too close to each other and seat for my daughter is broken. I then go back inside with her and try to feed her but I can't find any bottle in the kitchen and I get angry.

I am driving in a Canadian city while listening to the radio. They are actually broadcasting my biological father having a conversation with a film director. The latter is asking him to be part of a new movie but my father refuses. As I turn on a smaller road the radio begins broadcasting ads.

I am talking to my mother in a kitchen and she tells me of a beautiful Sicilian town. I actually cannot listen to her after visiting a beautiful Norwegian village. I then tell her I was walking along the southern part of a lake and reached the eastern side from which the mountains could be admired.

I am at a train station with a group of tourists. I am actually responsible for them and should take them to the last platform and divide them up. They actually already know which train to take and I am left with an English girl who is getting sun burnt and a guy I will travel to Egypt with.

I am with my best friend outside a street and he shows me an Italian car passing by. I have never seen it before and he tells me it is the best car in the market. We then follow it by car and end up in the office building where he works. It is new but the location is not so good next to the airport.

I am in my Venetian apartment at night after setting up my family in different rooms. Also the dead parents of my stepfather are there sleeping in the corridor but I realize that I still have three tenants in the house. One of them arrives and I try to explain to her the misunderstanding.

I am walking with my girlfriend and my daughter to a small kindergarten on a buy road. We get inside and realize that the person working there speaks Spanish. He takes the kids on a big wooden stroller outside and I go out to photograph them. As I go back in I realize we are in our house.

I am with my son in an island and walk inside a small shop. They sell different kind of jelly fishes and my son wants to eat one but I convince him to go for some mango juice. We then walk down to the ferry and see cement tanks navigating against us and airplanes pushing them away.

I am in a room with a famous artist and lay on the sofa with my girlfriend. My lesbian Swedish colleagues come to lay naked on top of her and the artist takes his camera out. He then try to rearrange the girls and the lesbian comes stretching against me with nipples resembling long tongues.

I am with my dead grandfather in the family tomb. I actually touch a marble table and realize that the woman buried underneath died quite young. As I try to read an inscription saying how weak she was my grandfather shows me the photos of our ancestors placed around the table.

I am on a square seating in front of a small crowd with my back against the knees of a girl. I am actually competing with a video-game even though I cannot see the screen. I can only hear people's reaction and turn to the screen when the game ends. I have been disqualified for a whole month.

I am walking on a bike path overlooking a beach and talking to some American guys. They are all heading home by bike but I realize that I don't have my sneakers on. I left them on the beach and there is high tide now but I am able to see one that is getting wet with waves touching it.

I am in a Norwegian school attending the party of a friend. Her black boyfriend got time off from prison to also attend the birthday. I then get to talk to him and ask how long is his sentence. It is not too long and we start comforting each other about living as immigrant in such a cold country.

I am in my barn in the mountains looking at my old neighbour going to his barn. He comes out with a stroller filled with his old clothes and I realize it is a present for me. I then go to check them and find a nice woolen sweater. He wants to thank me for the money I have paid him lately.

I am in a newly built cafeteria talking to the nephew of a family friend. I then ask him if he can teach me how to weld and he tells me that he do so but he has not find any job yet. He has sent his curriculum everywhere and some people have replied but only for him to work as a secretary.

I am with my girlfriend on a train to a toy shop. We arrive and go in to check for the missing head of a doll. They only have few toys inside and I am about to go out but my girlfriend likes a long puppet that can bounce. The shop owner tells us an outrageous price but she is still interested.

I am in a laboratory walking around and looking for some equipment for my girlfriend. I actually find a battery connected to a small motor and I bring it to her even though it is still spinning. As she starts working on it I realize that the woman seating in front of us represents an Italian firm.

I am in an apartment with my American curator friend and ask him to help me find a gallery that can represent me. He agrees but tells me that we have to at least find a gallery show where to exhibit one of my paintings. We start to think of a Chinese gallery but I want to have a Japanese one.

I am seating on a bike path making a drawing when a girl comes by and takes it from me. She is also making drawings and I follow her to an apartment where a man hosts artists. He has no room for me and takes a leash out. They then block me on the floor and put it around my waist.

I am in a car seating next to a guy who is driving by a river. He is actually speaking on the phone and I look at the river but suddenly he starts hugging me. I then realize that he is homosexual and I try to set myself free but he suddenly turns away from the river and I cannot get his arms away.

I am on top of a mountain with my neighbours' son. We hear another neighbour arriving with her dog and start throwing stones to attract it. As I pick a stone I find the tip of an old Austrian bomb and my neighbours' son decides to shoot it against a valley even though it is now Italian.

I am in a meeting with my stepfather and an important surgeon. I actually need to wear a device to regulate my heart but it has a very long antenna. I try to keep it in front of me and finally manage to ask a question to the surgeon. He then shows us how to place the device on my naked chest.

I am in a villa on the hills and go out to have breakfast with my old friends. One of them is wearing makeup after a rough night and he starts telling us how much he parties. Suddenly there is another old friend going up by bike and we realize that he should to be the unhealthy one.

I am in an abandoned factory looking for a room where I can do my work. A lady sees me and wants to show me the room she has used. It is well curtained and completely renovated but I realize that it must be too expensive for me to rent. I try to let her know but she keeps talking about it.

I am on the side of a road going below a big highway. I actually need to reach a shop and I ask a couple passing by. The guy doesn't talk but the girl tells me that I need to continue below the highway. I then start going left but she shows me that the lane of the highway she meant is to the right.

I am in a university office and hear my girlfriend discussing with a colleague in a corner. I then reach them to see what is going on and I realize that he is making sexual advances to her. I then first get angry saying that he was already accused once but then hug him and tell him to talk to me.

I am walking with some guys in a tunnel of a Canadian city and realize that there are a lot of homeless sleeping above. I then tell them that my biological father could be among them and start talking loud in Italian. One of the homeless answers me and I leave the guy to go check who it was.

I am in a small cinema with a group of artists. As I watch the movie I realize that they are all very famous and have been selected to be part of it but I have not. I then want to leave the room and start to think what is it in my art that it is not so appealing but an artist convince me to stay.

I am in an office and want to show the secretary of an Italian minister the new architectural drawing I got to build my cathedral. I turn my computer on and try to connect to the Internet but there is program that tries to install itself. I then search on a download folder but it is also blocked.

I am at a fair looking at an old car being repaired. One of the mechanics asks me if I intend to buy one and I tell him that I am interested. He then takes me to his shop and I also tell him that I want a motorcycle. We then reach his place but he only wants money from me and give him coins.

I am with my girlfriend visiting one of his colleagues in his apartment. They actually start playing in the kitchen and end up on top of each other. I then get out in the hallway and start throwing his things around. I even manage to throw a folder through his mailbox and decide to leave.

I am walking in a city and reach a military post. They are Arab soldiers and think I am a terrorist. I then walk really fast down a road and reach another military post. A soldier there is shooting small European flags and I realize that I am safe. There is actually a parade I can watch with my son.

I am watching a series about an American spy who gets caught by a Russian spy in a small village. As the latter gets distracted another American spy comes forward to give the other spy a code she should practice to set herself free. The Russian spy sees it and takes the ticket off her hands.

I am in a small apartment at night and decide to turn on a big firework. I actually do so inside the living room and go out in the terrace to wait for the explosion. I hear my stepfather getting in the living room and I am about to warn him to move away when the firework explodes outside.

I am in a classroom with English college students and hear one of them talking bad about me. I then get angry and throw an ice-cream against him. It ends up on his table and I get out of the school to buy myself another ice-cream and think how I cannot control myself with other people.

I am in a field with a group of diplomats when some black jeeps come to pick us up. I get to seat in the last one with a girl on my side. She starts holding my hand but my girlfriend is seating on the opposite side and I take my hand away to start caressing her hairs and avoid the other girl.

I am watching a movie about a black slave working with other slaves on a building. A guard tells him to start attaching a metal net and he starts picking up some old nails from the ground. He walks behind a barrack and then run away into the a mall with black people working as artists.

I am in a dark kitchen talking to a girl in front of a map. I realize it shows the properties in our mountain village and she starts marking the ones she owns. I actually really would like to buy one I need to build the path to my cathedral but realize it would be too expensive to pay the notary.

I am walking outside a supermarket with my girlfriend when a guy starts following us. He is a maniac and wants to have sex with us but I explain to him that anyone who wants to have sex with us must check for sexual diseases. It doesn't work and he keep following us to the garage.

I am driving a scooter to a shop. I actually want to change it for a new one but they don't want to give me much money for it. I then call the owner but she suddenly tells me that the pope is abdicating. I don't know what she means but then realize that the church is trying to get a better pope.

I am in a city with a group of very fashionable girls. I am also dressing very special clothes and run through a small modern square following an Asian girl with blond hairs. We end up in a trendy shop and start trying very colorful glasses. I buy some that have a special shape and green lenses.

I am in a field planning to cut a big tree leaning down. As I plan how to make it fall a group of American students arrives. I then explain to them that I am building an open air cathedral. I also tell them that they can come and help me. Two of them are interested and wants my email address.

I am part of an international delegation and we enter an oval room. My sister is also part of it and I try to seat away from her. I find free seats on the opposite side of the room and see how ugly the people on the opposite side are. I then expect some ugly person next to me but a nice girl comes.

I am walking in an English city with my girlfriend and see a young girl dressing like a manga character. I then tell my girlfriend that the girl looks ridiculous but she doesn't find any problem with it. As I try to argue that such an outfit is only for Japanese girls we reach a girl dressing normally.

I am driving in a city with my family and reach a crossing. I then look at the street signs but they are very confusing with names I have never heard of. I then keep driving over a bridge but as I do that I suddenly recognize the name of a city to my right on a small street going apart from it.

I am part of a small team of spies meeting in the apartment of our Jewish boss. There is an international crisis and we realize that the city is crowded with international spies. Suddenly the doorbell rings and one of us goes to open. There are many protesters outside and we lock ourselves in.

I am walking in the surrounding of my native town and check the farm of a girl I am supposed to date. There are many sheep of different kinds and I continue to the city center putting a sticker on a street sign. I then stop to film the main square but there are black kids jumping in the fountain.

I am walking in a city with my daughter in the stroller and pass by an hardware store. I actually need to buy some screws and get inside. I then look around and find some. I have no free hands and put them in my pocket to go to the cashier but completely forget and leave without paying.

I am at a big conference with an old friend seating high on the edge of an auditorium. He actually walks all the way down and pick the microphone. I expect him to start a speech but he only insults a guy seating below. As he comes back a movie gets shown and I lay down as it is in Italian.

I am watching an Indian girl a video-game I am building using an architectural program. It shows a building I would like to construct and I even know the terms in Hindi. I then navigate to a cement wall and try to use the term in her language but really get stuck and can't remember it.

I am with my girlfriend among a lot of protesters on a big road. We are standing still and decide to seat down with all the others. As it gets dark I want to make love to my girlfriend but her nipples is wounded and she really gets hurt. She then moves away and I don't know how to help her.

I am in a station waiting for a train and see that there is an ugly German girl next to me. I then walk down to the platform and she follows me. I walk all the way to the end and see that my train is departing. It is actually only a two seat train and the driver tells me and the girl to step in.

I am biking in a field and look at a big machinery on an empty parking lot. As I realize that it is meant to transport stuff around a hippo starts charging me. I then run back but there is a rhino on the opposite side also charging me. I think to cross a small river but they can also swim.

I am in a French small town following some young protesters taking pictures of them. They suddenly stop and one of them looks inside my backpack. I have an Islamic sword and I take it from him but as I walk away I realize that I might look like a terrorist. I then try to put it back in the bag.

I am in a classroom presenting once more my thesis to some foreign professors. Only my old Swedish professor is there and asks me the relation of my thesis with left political parties. I then start talking about a left theorist but the professors tell me it was more interesting the first part.

I am walking in a city and find a ball with next to it a big syringe. I then realize that the latter can be used to make new balls and take it home to my son. He really likes it and I call his mother to tell her about the syringe but she worries that it can be used as a very dangerous weapon.

I am in a living room at night and wake up next to my girlfriend. I cannot fell asleep anymore and start watching some television. There is actually a channel where I can hear a woman having an orgasm but I cannot see her. I change immediately but there is again another porno movie.

I am in a tunnel wanting to cross but there is an old man with a football. He wants to play with me but I have to catch a bus. Another old man comes to play with him and I am finally able to pass. The bus is about to leave and I get inside but the hostess puts me to seat in a shower.

I am walking down a narrow valley with a friend and meet a man with his son walking up. They ask where they can jump in the river and I tell them that they have to walk all the way down. The place where they want to jump is actually very close and I start looking at the rocks they can hit.

I am in a school and see my old art history professor. I call his name and realize he has a beard. I want to talk to him but he has to teach a class and I walk to the cafeteria where I start to dismantle my web-camera. I want to give it to him but then realize he cannot connect it to a computer.

I am part of a big show and walk with other artists to see the place where we have to install our work. I Chinese artist has already installed his work and he shows his installation. It took him a long time to put up some simple paintings and I ask him if I can already get started with my work.

I am biking on a highway and stop at a gas station before it gets dark. I then go inside and follow other people in a buffet even though I did not pay. I get to eat a slice of ham and get out. It is very dark and I see an English father with his sons packing their things to go inside and sleep.

I am walking with my son alongside a very ancient building and stop to shoot a small video. I actually do it with the camera pointing on the opposite side of the building and realize that I should have pointed inside. We then go in and I get close to some girls to hear if they speak Roman dialect.

I am in an apartment with a Japanese boy. He is actually playing by himself and I push him from behind. I then run to my room and lock myself inside but he runs after me and manage to open the room. He then tries to wrestle me down but twist his arm behind and try to make him stop.

I am in a garden with my small daughter and notice a small cabin in the bushes. It looks quite okay and I am about to go inside but realize that there are a lot of beer cans next to it. They are from Eastern Europe and I realize that the cabin is the hide out of kids who have kidnapped kids.

I am in a school seating in front of my girlfriend's boss. We just had a job interview but also her assistant is there and has one question for me. I don't actually understand it but I reply that only one out of the eighty students I have every year get inspired about the kind of work I do.

I am in a cafe seating at the table and looking at an Indian family getting food from the counter. They are actually getting watermelon slices and the owner tells them that they are not included. The Indian father then says that he is willing to pay for them and I give him some extra coins.

I am in an airport waiting on a queue to get out. I already have my house keys out so I can be on the priority queue with just a few persons in front of me. As it finally gets my turn I see that my stepfather is waiting outside and he takes me back on the asphalt field where I just landed.

I am in an apartment looking at a gypsy guy crawling up the wooden panels of the condominium. I realize that he is fixing them and I also start sawing a panel. He then comes to me with his team and I show him the bathroom I would like to renovate but it looks as if it doesn't need renovation.

I am with my girlfriend in the cafe of a train station when I hear my mother saying that she is waiting for us in another station. I then realize that a train is about to leave and we run down the stairs carrying musical instruments. As the train door are about to close I put a stick in one of them.

I am in the valley below my cathedral and realize that my old neighbour has a caravan there. I enter to talk to him but it starts shaking. He then explains to me that it is an earthquake. There are other people inside and they put cash on the table at every new quake. I then take some for me.

I am in the office of a priest and he begs me not to talk about the war to his students. I then tell him that I was also lecturing to the students of an American priest and he was fine with me talking about the war. The priest then shows me a big manuscript of his friend but it is quite empty.

I am renting a big motorcycle from a man who shows me how to hold the accelerator down in order to block it. I then start driving through a tunnel but realize that at the end of it there are stairs. I manage to go on top of them and end up in front of a condominium where I decide to park.

I am in an Italian city and reach a river. There is actually a big dead tree floating in the middle and I jump in the water to reach it. The current is too strong and I don't manage but get dragged further down. As I get out of the water again I realize that I have now reached a German city.

I am in a meeting room with a lot of Asian people. One of them is trying to hook me up with a family but I choose to be hosted by two European lesbians. I then explain them that we have a baby but don't know where to leave her blankets. They welcome us and prepare Indonesian food.

I am in a restaurant with my Dutch friends and go to a different room to play with the kids. One of their mother has another game to play with them and tells me to leave. I then get out feeling very angry and avoid her husband to go to another dinner with my girlfriend's colleagues.

I am in a parking lot of a Mexican city waiting for a bus to take me and my family across the boarder. I actually already been there and I remember of a beautiful church with a gold decorated interior. I want to take my family there and start searching for it but end up in an Italian owned pub.

I am in a room with several professors asking about my thesis. They don't have anything more to say and I talk to my Ukrainian colleague about the article they wrote about me on the national newspaper. I then go out to wait for the professors' response but end up in a big cafeteria.

I am in a room with my sister and my stepfather trying to teach us Latin. He is very strict and wants us to translate whatever he reads. There is actually his priest friend waiting for him outside but my stepfather gets very agitated and starts a whole new book in Latin for us to translate.

I am with my friends outside a bar when a cabriolet drives very close to us. It actually backs up and I realize that the driver is very drunk. My best friend actually knows him and he shows how to get in the bar. He comes out again with half a bottle of liquor and start drinking and driving.

I am in a villa with other artists when I am left alone with a famous one. He is old and I help him to get to the dining room. I want to seat next to him but there is no space. He actually makes me seat in the corner next to him and I want to photograph us together but he is too much on the side.

I am in a field and see some wild donkeys on the top. I then hide below in a small forest and see them approaching. Their faces are really weird and I realize that only their bodies are donkeys and the heads are camels. As one of them gets closer to me I get afraid it might be aggressive.

I am in my property with my mountain neighbour's son and he tells me to hide a tree we have been cutting. I then realize that we are in someone's else property and that we have been eating their food. My woodman is still eating a big slice of cheese and I take it from him to bring back inside.

I am in the altar of a church with two artists. They are actually preaching in front of a crowd about two holly sculpture laying down. They criticize the fact that they were made of cement and are too big. As the actual priest starts the sermon I understand that they are reciting a comedy.

I am walking on a bridge with my best friend that it getting dark. It is actually quite steep and suddenly my friend start sliding very fast down. I also follow him and catch some speed but all of a sudden he stops to announce that he just got a phone call from his boss and he got a promotion.

I am getting inside a small cinema holding my small daughter. As I see that my Swedish professor is seating all the way to the front I get a former American colleague to talk to me. She also became a professor and tells me about all her social media profiles. I tell her I have none of them.

I am in my parents' Venetian apartment watching a movie about the war. As they show an exciting battle scene my stepfather comes in. I then realize that the place is a mess with a lot of stuff laying everywhere. I then start cleaning even though I have to miss the best part of the film.

I am in a Sicilian town and start looking around. I first think it is a very good holiday place but then realize that there are a lot of modern buildings for tourists. They all have expensive cars but then I see a very cheap one. It is from an old couple I always see in the mountain drinking alcohol.

I am walking on a beach and realize that there are all the passengers from a big cruise. One of them is my friend and I see him tanning with his family. They actually also have a boat on board and I wonder how much he had to pay to transport it along with other boats of other passengers.

I am with my brother-in-laws and their family on a beach. I am actually looking at one of their daughters loosing a slice of watermelon in the sea. Her brother wants to go get it but he is too small and I offer to go. I then start undressing myself and I am about to go in but the water is too cold.

I am looking at a newspaper with my girlfriend and see the new model of our car announced. I then realize that it just costs a little bit more than our old car. I read to my girlfriend all the safety feature it has a too big. As the actual priest starts the sermon I understand that they are reciting a comedy.

I am on a boat parked in a harbour and see that it is catching fire. I then instruct the sailors to operate the water pump but the tube is stuck. By the time we manage to get it out I notice that there is no more fire. I ask the captain if we should anyway wash a side of the boat but he refuses.

I am in a German cafe with two friends and one of them asks me to take a photo with a local girl. I then ask her and she agrees but also the other friend wants a photo with her. He is much more handsome and the girl puts her face very close to his and they start kissing with their tongues.

I am walking by a river with my son and reach other smaller rivers. He then starts running along another one and I try to catch up with him. He even drops his phone and keeps running down a side of the hill. I tell him not to and he starts running back up into a hospital where we play swords.

I am seating outside a cafe of an old city and see my cousin entering the main church. I try to call him but notice that his face all red. He actually comes out with a funeral procession and look at a young boy putting the coffin of her dead sister inside a car. She is actually a mafia victim.