

I am walking on a street taking me back home and find my Indonesian neighbour very puzzled. He is without his wife and I see that she walking ahead surrounded by friends, I then go to them to ask what it is going on and I find that the woman has been beaten by her Indonesian husband.

I am in a museum working at an exhibition with my colleagues. We actually need to install my photo panels in an arch and they have already painted some black squares where they should seat. I then see that the panels will never fit in the square and ask decide to also use another arch.

I am reading a very interesting book on-line talking about archival practices. It also mentions my name and I want to check if I know the author. He has the same last name of a Russian village. I then also include his first name in the search and see pictures of him with my Polish friend.

I am at the entrance of a cinema waiting to go see a movie. They only allow those who are limbed and have a prosthesis. I actually have a fake one and also have one for my sister but she still not inside. I then have to give up my place in the line to go back out in the dark and see where she is.

I am in a big church hiding behind a column and trying to listen to what the preacher is saying. A young girl is actually behind me and I have to move to let her pass. I actually do so in the direction of the preacher and immediately reproach me for having spied on him but I pretend like nothing.

I am walking next to a field and realize that it is perfect to take my kids with the sled. I actually start walking uphill and see mountains all around me. I come to a small village and end up in the house of a man who teaches how to become a blacksmith but I don't inquire and just walk further.

I am in a city and see that there is a big gathering of the separatist group. I actually don't have a camera with me and run to my hotel to get it but one of the organizers stops me. She then shows me how the separatists were all having a special haircut with shaved sides and a lot of gel on top.

I am in my parents' city walking out of a cafe. There is a military band playing and I follow it to the barrack where I meet my stepfather's sister. As we start talking together my mother also comes and start threatening me but I just tell her to shut up and walk to another cafe on the other side.

I am watching the speech of an old major declaring that the whole city should be put in lock down due to the pandemic. I really disagree with him but he starts to philosophize and he almost convince me. Later he stands up and his secretary wants him to sign some documents but he leaves.

I am walking in a city with my girlfriend right after getting married. We are actually annoyed with her father who has been criticizing the fact that we live there. We see people living in worst conditions like a woman trying to hang her laundry outside her terrace right in front of a busy road.

I am in my Dutch house with my stepfather who is inspecting a wooden shelf I have just installed in the entrance. He is not happy about it and think it is badly mounted but I check again with a water level and it is almost perfect. I then realize that it is the older shelf below it to be crooked.

I am walking in the outskirts of an old Dutch city and get a message from a colleague. He is actually with a very ugly girl and I go to her apartment. I expect them to find them on the top floor but all the rooms are empty. As I am about to go back out he tells me where to find them downstairs.

I am in a small airport getting ready to board. As I line up to go through the gate I realize that I still didn't check-in. It is actually too late and I just pass my old ticket through the scanner. It works but I anyway try to use my phone to retrieve the actual ticket before I board on the plane.

I am walking in a village and reach the station. There is no one on the train but then see that there is an older train standing on a bridge. I go in to check it and find all the seats occupied by older people. As I try to go out a lot of young people come in and fill the corridor blocking my way.

I am driving with a very expensive car and park in my uncle's factory. There are no other cars but I anyway manage to hit the wall with the trunk. I then get out from it a bag of apples I brought for my uncle but walk in the factory and decide to give them to my stepfather who is in a room there.

I am in the office of the engineer who is helping me building the staircase inside my museum. It is a big mess and I realize that they are moving to a new place. I then hand him the technical drawings I have of the project museum. As I walk out I realize that it is a fancy villa with fountains.

I am in a cruise and go to the cafeteria to eat but all the tables are occupied. One chair of a table where two middle age women are seating gets free. I seat next to one and I start feeling her foot against my leg. I look at her to see what is going on and find that she is the old girlfriend of a friend.

I am driving a small car at night with my Polish friend. He actually stops in front of a university to put in a fence a long fencing sword he has on the roof. We then park a bit further and get ready to go in to do a lot of exams. I haven't prepared but he tells me that they are all very easy to do.

I am walking with my spiritual friend on a sidewalk with a lot of toys for kids. There are a lot of parents with their kids and we walk inside the building right in front. It is very modern and interesting to see but it could be private and we try to walk out but end up in an old Chinese restaurant.

I am in my mountain village and go to say hi to my old neighbour. She has her hairs painted like clay and invites me to drink liquor with the other villagers. I then pretend to drink a glass and then go in a room where everyone is getting naked but they tell me that I can keep my clothes on.

I am on a road with my daughter when two Moroccans jumps on her. I don't even get angry with them and just start running away with her to a small square where two Mongolians also start to look at her. I get the feeling they want to kidnap her and also run away with her dropping her shoe.

I am at work waiting for my bosses to tell me what to do. They walk pass without even looking at me and go to a mechanic who is trying to fix the scooter of another employee. I then also go nearby and see that he reaches under the seat only to choke the engine like I could also have done.

I am in an hotel room getting ready to meet an Thai girl staying in a nearby room. She is actually my boss and I try to wash myself well. I also pee but make the toilet all dirty and I hear her voice saying that because of that I won't be able to work for her company anymore and she will leave me.

I am in a metro recording a video to show where to stop. I already announce that we will have to go out on the right side but I am already in front of the door and when it opens I realize I should have said that we have to go out straight. I then do so anyway and try to film but it is too crowded.

I am in a square at night and want to go home but need to find my way. I then check on my phone how to proceed but realize that there are two black guys looking at me. They very likely want to steal my phone but I just start walking very fast ahead of them and left and right to confuse them.

I am standing in front of a pond and notice on my left several kids trying to fish. The water is too shallow and they are just using a fishing wire without a pole. I then pick the wire of a boy and show him how to stick it further out. A big fish actually comes and I manage to get it take the bait.

I am out on the street of our Dutch village trying a skateboard. A policeman is not happy about it and I go in a shop where some guys are playing a video-game. I am supposed to throw a stone across a field and I take a smaller stone to simulate the shot. The guys after me are much better.

I am driving with a girl on my side and tell her on my father working in an American chicken farm. We actually reach a city with a big intersection and I keep to the right although my phone tells me to go straight. I anyway keep to the right and try to make up the time but come to a red light.

I am in an office organizing an exhibition about my work. I actually have a print out of one of my first exhibitions and think of attaching it to the wall. It looks too small and I could try to have something bigger there. I then attach on the computer screen although I won't be able to play anything.

I am with my old friends watching a video I made of when we were young. It shows me teaching one of them how to drive a cabriolet but then it starts showing me following another friend skiing down a mountain. The snow is too soft and a lot of people we pass keep falling but not my friend.

I am in a zoo with my girlfriend and one of her friends. The latter wants to feed our kids with cheese but I warn her that it is too strong for them. She doesn't care and I just walk away. I actually meet people I already know before but do not greet them and find a pond where to take my kids.

I am in a classroom drawing when a teenager comes and throw my table upside down. His friends are filming him and I understand he wants to beat me up. I then break a leg of the table and make him go away but another guy comes and have people helping him stealing a couch in the room.

I am driving a car on a street with a man on the phone guiding me. He wants me to turn to the left but it is a bike path and I have to keep on street up some staircases. I then end up at a gas station and decide to get some gasoline. The guy then reaches me and gives me and toss me a helmet.

I am at work looking at the white board where my bosses have written down the schedule for the coming week. I see that my name is in red and I am set to start a new project that will continue for the coming two weeks. I am fine with it but they have completely forgot about my free days.

I am in an hotel and explore the different rooms. My parents rented for me a small one and I check the one they rented for themselves. It has a very big terrace and the bedroom is connected to it. It looks as if there are no walls also with the corridor but then I see that there are sliding doors.

I am at an Austrian colleague house and we take a bike ride. I then notice a lake where I used to swim and point it out to her. I tell her that the water is warm and she tries it with her hand even though it is winter. Further on we reach a forest but all the pine trees there are dried and dead.

I am outside of a big compound crossing the square right in front of it. Three guys are playing football and I pity them for living there. They seem actually quite healthy and I also start playing football with them but as I get the ball I kick it on top of the compound and another ball falls down.

I am in a kitchen helping a man to cook. I actually finish to grind the cheese and he tells me to throw the crust in the normal garbage as it is full of bacteria and it can contaminate the compost. I then don't dare to tell him that my grandfather taught me how to clean it and eat it as a snack.

I am in a city and visit the shop my girlfriend's father has just opened. It only sells very boring shoes but I anyway congratulate myself with him. I go out again and notice that a mountain neighbour is standing on the other side of the square. I manage to call him with a very loud whistle.

I am biking on a forest path with another guy seating between my legs. He is really heavy and two other bikers pass us. I then tell him to get out and start biking really fast over some timber laying across the path. I actually manage to catch up with the two bikers but another one pass me.

I am in a Chinese airport with my girlfriend and plan to visit an historic site. We are still at the coast and we think of renting a car but then realize it would take us days to reach the site. I tell the agent that we are better off flying there but he assures us it is only a few hours away by car.

I am in the back garden of a luxury hotel with my two twin cousins. They are both getting ready for a bike race but have refused to vaccinate and need to train within the garden. It is too small to bike and I propose them to play football instead but only one of the cousins agrees to do so.

I am in the house of my mountain neighbour who tells me that there have been wolves coming at night. He also tells me that a panda was also among them and they made a lot of noise. I then vaguely remember having waken up hearing something but falling back asleep without feeling threat.

I am at work warming up some bread in the microwave. One of my group leaders doesn't even say hi to me and the other thinks I am cooking the bread for too long. I then take it out but it is actually perfect and I try to explain to him that it was frozen to begin with but he doesn't listen.

I am in an old kitchen having dinner with my girlfriend and kids. Our son is supposed to eat a soup but he doesn't like it. I actually have some cans of ham and I open one for him. His mother puts it next to his plate and he starts eating all the ham inside it without mixing it with anything.

I am in a small apartment with a girl who is working on her laptop and I approach her to see whether we should make love again. We have actually done it already many times and I think she is anyway working but she agrees and decides to do it in the car although it is not so comfortable.

I am with my girlfriend seating on a small table on the side of a road coming down a mountain. We are just after a curve and I am afraid that the cars coming down won't be able to see us. One almost runs over us and I realize that it is the hunter who has been trying to sabotage my museum.

I am in a car with a girl driving through the mountains. I actually see a sanctuary on the other side of the valley and wish to go see but realize that it is very far. As we keep on driving I also see a sanctuary on our side of the mountain and wish to go there but then reach a village where we stop.

I am on the top of a building at night. There are other young people partying although there is a curfew and we are supposed to be inside. A black gay guy even starts to arrange a long table onto which he can make cocktails and then do so next to the fence where it is most inconvenient.

I am in an old dormitory with the German owner of the vegan restaurant near our mountain village. I am actually laying sick in bed and need some electricity to charge my equipment. I then ask him to plug them in for me but he shows me that the socket is almost full with all his equipment.

I am at dinner with my new friends and pretend that my twin sister is my girlfriend. She actually seating on the other side of the table and a guy next to me looks at her. She is got really fat but he only tells me that he doesn't like her hairs. I look at them and find them very short and thin.

I am at the dentist with my mouth open. He is checking for cavities and writes on a paper all the teeth he thinks have them. He is actually unsure and only ask me which one I think it is most painful. I know exactly which one it is and tell him to go ahead to fix it even though he is still not sure.

I am in a restaurant with a friend looking for a place where to seat. My mother's family is also there and I want to avoid them but he goes straight to them. They already ate and their table is too small for us but my friend insists that we should seat there and squeeze ourselves in a corner.

I am in the back of a car seating on one side. In the middle is a guy and on the other side is a very fat girl. She actually leans towards me to give me a kiss in a cheek and I then also give her a kiss in the other cheek. She is really surprised that I have done it and starts holding my hand.

I am laying in bed in an apartment feeling still very sleepy. My kids are sleeping next to me and I just cannot fall back asleep. I then get up to see what time is it and go to the kitchen to see if there is a clock. There are several but they are all facing the wall and I flip one and see that it is late.

I am walking on a coast with my youngest son and try to see if there is a cave underneath it. We start walking on some big rocks but I realize that some of them are just suspended on one another. I then try to make it back but one rock falls and I barely manage to put my son on the other side.

I am in a school and see my name on a white board under a letter. I then understand that they are dividing us in groups and I have to be with the last one. I reach it that a Venezuelan guy is being the moderator. He then introduces me as a great artist and a teacher starts asking me questions.

I am working with an older guy in a big square. I follow him to a very big container where a giant red crane is letting a hook down. It is very heavy but he manages to get it and attach it to the container. I am also supposed to get one but I just don't see it and in the end he has to get it for me.

I am with a Dutch friend on a train and realize that we are going the opposite way. We then get off and I follow him carrying a large canvas down the staircase. We have to reach the opposite platform but I can barely see and we get in the elevator where I pretend to crash the canvas against him.

I am in a big parking lot seating in our car with my children. We are stuck between two other cars and I can't really open the door to go out but a sculptor from my native highland comes and I open the door against the car next to me. I can then go out to hug him and tell him about my project.

I am in a big stadium about to attend a yoga class. The teacher is below and the students are distributed all around her. I am actually afraid to do so myself as they are almost hanging on a vertical wall with only a bar to hold on to. I then decide to stay on the very top but it is also dangerous.

I am watching a movie about a couple walking on the street. Two cops come and take the girl away but the guy realizes that they are fake policemen. He then shoot at the hat of one and disclose the horns he has underneath it. He then shoots again to break them to pieces and free his girlfriend.

I am at work building a furniture when an artist colleague comes. I then try to ask her how she is but our boss comes by and brings her to work in another room. I then have a break with two other colleagues and ask one for some scissors I need to cut a special paper I need for my own project.

I am with my girlfriend in front of a condominium and notice a small American car. We actually need it to go back home but my girlfriend has to pee and goes to the bathroom on the opposite condominium. I then start drawing and as she comes out I notice there are two other guys with her.

I am in a very small supermarket and reach the cashier. The lady there is actually the mother of a Japanese friend and she tells me that I should keep her more up to date with my art work. I would like to do that but there are a lot of people starting to queue up behind me and I just leave.

I am walking on a street with my girlfriend carrying a door for our house. As we finally reach it she finds a lot of letters in the mailbox. They are from my family who has been trying to contact me. One of them is from my stepfather and it is without any envelope to make sure I read it.

I am in a garage working with my spiritual friend and his father to clean it all up. There are a lot of pieces from a big installation and we just put them in a trailer. A lot of them are with wood that I could have used at home to make fire with. It is now too late and we just throw everything away.

I am walking with my son on the stroller towards the downtown of my parents former village. There are actually different families on the street and there are toys for the kids to play with. I try to avoid them but they are on the way and I cannot slow down. I actually start to go even faster.

I am on a plane with my oldest son and I notice that he is holding hands with an older Swedish woman. They actually met before departure and we get out of the airport together. I then propose to walk her home but then just give my son some money so that he can spend the night with her.

I am with my girlfriend walking through an Arab house under renovation. I then get in several ogival arches but can no longer find her. I also cannot find my way out anymore and just start calling her name. I finally get out on the opposite side and soon after she comes out from another arch.

I am in a square saying farewell to a lot of international students. I then ask them to get together so that I can take a portrait photo of each of them. They do so and I first pretend to do a group photo before coming closer but the sun is right behind me and there is my long shadow on them.

I am working in a library with my laptop playing a very nice soft music. I actually feel very productive but a girl seating a few rows ahead tells me to turn the music off. I actually try but my computer freezes with a big screen full of porn images and she comes up to me to see what it is going on.

I am in the living room of our Dutch house and realize we have two cats. One of them is on the table but the other cannot jump. The one of the table then comes down and get attacked by the other cat who starts to hold him from the back. I am afraid they are going to fight but they soon let go.

I am in a playground and pass by a guy laying down on the grass. I then realize that one of them is an old classmate and I wonder why is not working. He actually asks me if I can work with him but I tell him that I have kids to look after. He also has one and he is just having a day off with him.

I am checking a website and find that a company has put my project museum in the fountain in front of their headquarter. The water goes through it but freezes and I get quite upset about it but then see that the construction is much bigger above. There is a big metal arm with a belvedere.

I am in a hardware store watching on an old television the Olympics. There are other people around me and I realize that my Dutch boss is also there. She then comes way too close to me saying that she was really impressed I left without protesting and she wants to give me a new opportunity.

I am driving a tractor in a field near my native highland. I then realize that in the end is my project museum and I try to park next to it without hitting the modules I have prepared on the ground. As I dismantle I realize that there is even a big roof and I try to center the museum under a light.

I am on a beach and see that a father is beating up his kid. A woman just rescues the latter and brings him in a small island in the middle of a lake nearby. They start to play there with marble but his father reaches them and the kids hit him with a metal stick he is using to hit the marbles.

I am in my mountain village enjoying the nice weather outside. The sky is very blue but one of my neighbours complains to another neighbour that it is too humid. He has rheumatic problems but I tell him that he is lucky not to live where I live up north where it is really humid and cloudy.

I am outside a stadium with a girl who actually dies in my arms. I then put her in a garbage bin and just seat on a table with some guys pretending like nothing has ever happened. The cops actually comes right away but we are playing a card game and they don't suspect about anything.

I am in an open air cinema with a lot of peers where poor people are taking a seat on the ground. The film I want to watch will last several days and I realize that I have no food nor money with me and I will definitively starve. I seat anyway and find a volunteer ready to help me with provisions.

I am at my best friend house working in the basement. He is setting up a large table and I try to help him but need an electric saw. I assume he doesn't have one and decide to use a normal saw even though I will not be able to cut straight. He does have an electric saw but the blade is too thick.

I am in a room with the leader of an Italian populist party and the leader of a new party that is even more extreme. The latter proposes a package to rescue the situation created by the pandemic. The former is not so convinced but I arrange to have breakfast together to find an agreement.

I am in our Dutch village with my girlfriend and see her colleague in the distance. I then think that she wants to go talk to her but she tells me to look down and pretend not to see her. We are actually heading towards her and I find that impossible but then see she it turned the other way.

I am in a factory when my uncle tells me that I should look for another job. I then understand that he is firing me and I anyway tell him that I have different aspirations and I would like to work for some laser company. One of them is near my hometown and I tell an Asian colleague about it.

I am in a house that it is already light outside but I want to go back to bed. My mountain neighbour has helped out with the children in the night and she is still asleep. I assume she is in one of the children's room and I go in the attic to sleep but she is using that bed and I go back down.

I am working in a museum setting up a fiber tape around a door. I then try to think how to finish the installation and consider to put more tape in a circle. I also ask another artist and in the end just decide to continue with the tape all the way to the floor but then realize I won't get any credits.

I am working in a shop and hear my stepfather calling me. He actually as a phone in his hands and asks me to reply. I hear the voice of a lady offering me to work as a bartender. She offers a lot of money per hour and as I hang up I double check with my stepfather that I understood right.

I am driving with an Italian friend on a field on top of a mountain. They have their house their and I find it really pretty but he tells me that there has been recently a snow storm and he was lucky to be driving his company truck. I then realize they are very high up and it can be too cold there.

I am in front of a garage helping my Dutch boss to bring some panels inside. I am actually very quick and he suddenly declares to me that he finds it really painful I left without saying goodbye. He then tells me that he has a plan to make me the head of a department and I wonder which one.

I am checking out a laboratory walking around an artificial pool when an Austrian girl working there starts following me. She proposes a restaurant in town and a date when we could go there together. She then tells me that it is actually her only day off from work after the Christmas holidays.

I am in a workshop making one of my paintings with a small air compressor. The air is actually coming out of a valve and I remove it to inspect it but two artists see me and puts a finger inside to test it. They find that there is blood within and it can no longer be used but I can use a brush.

I am in a hotel with an old Sicilian friend and go down to the restaurant to see if they have anything to eat. We then realize we have to pay for each dish but my friends takes the hands of the owner so that we can have the food for free. We then end up to eat a very boring cake he has left over.

I am on a road looking with an artist for a place where to park my tractor. He wants me to keep out but I insist we have to put it under a roof. We try to unscrew a wall to see if we can fit inside there but his screwdriver is too weak. I take mine but the screw is too long and keeps going back in.

I am in the studio of an artist helping her out to rearrange all her paintings. She is actually still open for the public and the lesbian girlfriend of my Danish curator shows up. She wants to buy a painting but it is too hard to show any to them and the artist just accepts to loose the opportunity.

I am with other policemen in a square and keep on walking while my colleagues go back to the station. I then meet a girl who needs to buy a carpet and I escort her to a mall where there are several shops. We check one where my girlfriend is also shopping and she tells us to go to another.

I am in a house that it is early in the morning and go to the kitchen with another colleague. We are supposed to start working and think to be alone there but our boss is seating on the table with her child. The latter is hungry and she is feeding her and I wish to show her how to do it properly.

I am in my mountain apartment listening to my neighbour standing outside the door talking to another neighbour. He has left an old machine to make iron tools in my living room and says that his wife wants it back. He then looks for a thin cable he needs to operate it as if it was for sewing.

I am walking with some people on a road below my mountain installation. As we come to a curve where we can see it I realize that there is a whole new installation next to us. It is very high and painted red but then I notice that there is also an opening on the top and that it is used by hunters.

I am checking how a family has renovated a house and make it ahead to their attic. A friend is also with me and I show him how they have been making a nice wooden ceiling. As we keep going forward it becomes too low and I start getting claustrophobic with the others pushing from the back.