

I am walking in a forest with my family carrying a heavy chainsaw. It is on and I decide to let my family go ahead and turn it off. I then do so and try to go ahead but reach a cliff from where a man and a woman dive into a frozen pond. I am terrified about the height but manage to cross it.

I am on a bus with a group of scouts checking a map showing a path they want to do. It is way too long and I tell them that it is either way to late to start it. As they get in a fight with another scout I get off the bus with them and start walking the path. It is steep and it is already getting dark.

I am following two thieves carrying a box of oranges inside a warehouse. We pretend to be costumers and a man shows us all their products. One of thieves gets restless and start stealing a suitcase but it has an alarm and with the other thief I run to a car. The other escapes with a cargo bike.

I am watching an anarchist author climbing up a stone well. It is very hard but he finally manages and comes out that his wife is waiting for him. They ended up outside a museum and they want to keep on climbing but all the walls are too low and she hasn't found anything challenging.

I am working in a field moving the branches that I have cut under a tree. My mountain neighbour's son comes to help me out and I feel very delighted. As his sister also joins us we listen to another neighbour announcing that he will try to participate to the Olympic games although he is too old.

I am watching a movie about a young couple who decides to travel up north to watch the aurora borealis. Their parents are against the idea but they have planned to travel with the plane and make it back early in the morning. They still have to make it to the airport first and it is way too far.

I am walking on a dike while talking to my twin sister on the phone. My best friend is with her and I pretend they are the same person but then reach a part of the river that is all flooded. As I am able to wade the first part I find myself on another dike and realize that the actual river is below it.

I am in an art institute a very talented Japanese animator. We are actually leaving but the black director invites us to his office and proposes that we can hold an animation course together. I am very happy about it but have to do all the talking because the Japanese girl is not reacting.

I am looking at some photos I have showing me and my spiritual friend in a restaurant. He is very skinny then and I wonder how he got so fat. I actually realize that the photos were taken not so long ago and I get even more curious on how it happen that in a short time his belly grew so much.

I am in the back of our street and realize that the neighbour living at the end of it is actually my former English colleague. He is also outside and shows me that the metal roof he has installed is now breaking apart. I offer to weld it for him but realize that it is not made of iron but of copper.

I am in a square at night and see that my Danish curator friend is sitting alone on a step. I go sit with her but realize that we are standing right in front of kindergarten and it is still open despite the late hour. I then wonder if the teachers don't find it weird that we are there but they seem okay.

I am outside our house with my partner and see our Greek friends walking by. I expect them to say hello to us but they just keep their head down and do not even look at us. As I wonder why they are so angry I notice that he has hairs growing back in his head even though he is fully bold.

I am in the garden of a villa I own and see that I have no access with my car. I then see my new neighbours walking to their car and tell them if I can also park in their property. They get upset but then I show them inside my villa and they see that I have turned it into a sanctuary with candles.

I am in the building where I am about to attend a master and realize that my new classmates are all Japanese. I then film them siting in their desk around the building and try to send the video to my spiritual friend but realize we are no longer in contact on my phone. I then send him an email.

I am visiting a colonial building with some young people and then follow them in the park in front of it. They lay down and I am also about to do so but then see that there are kiwi birds grazing. I then then get my camera out to film them and see that they all got in a big pile to sleep together.

I am in an American city at night and come to a square where I can see a cathedral in the distance. Suddenly a parade passes in front of me with people dressed with small lights. I then make it to the modern building between them and the cathedral and realize that it is also a church inside.

I am in a tunnel trying to make it outside and find that my former director is on his way in with his boyfriend. He got very old and is even lame having to walk with a stick. I then realize it is probably the last time I am going to see him again and give him a farewell kiss on his right cheek.

I am laying in a room with my partner and see that she is up. As I also get up I realize that she is feeding the head of a baby pig to her mother. She also has the head of the baby twin but after the mother has done eating I see that there are more pigs under the blanket and it is not enough.

I am in a kitchen watching the news while cooking. Suddenly the television doesn't work anymore and I move to the living room to keep on watching them on another television. I am surprised that the news start in a part I already watched about tourists getting too hot visiting historical cities.

I am with my daughter bathing in a canal when some big waves come. We see people on a boat getting hit and decide to get on a ferry. My daughter is actually wearing the inflatable take of a mermaid but she complains that it is hard to swim with it. It has too little air and I blow more in.

I am in an apartment with my children and find a photo hanging on the wall. It shows my maternal grandmother's brother with a boy and I realize that the latter must be a grandson. I then conclude that the apartment must be owned my a distant relative and want to talk to him or her.

I am walking down to the beach and find a guy pushing up an old wooden boat. The path is narrow but I either way don't wait for him and just make it first. He then has to get behind the boat and when I am below it I realize he has disappeared. I then wonder if he has left it there for good.

I am in a park with my daughter and notice a nice squirrel eating an acorn. It is very close to me and I wish to film it but realize that I left the pouch with my camera back in the hotel. I then tell my daughter to wait for me there and run to get the pouch but when I am back I cannot find her.

I am in front of an abandoned palace with my family. We are ready to drive away when my old mountain neighbour arrives with his friends. They have been drinking and stop right next to us to throw the wine bottles. We leave before they see us but our car is too small and it capsizes.

I am in a office with the Italian authority who facilitated me with the building of my ark. My youngest son is under the table making a mess and I start to get angry. The authority think it is with my boy I am actually angry with him for always being so cautious and never stand up for new ideas.

I am on the second floor of a shoe shop and see a very nice pair of black shoes on the floor below. I then go to check them out and also meet an old Roman philosopher friend there. I remember he doesn't wear shoes made of animal skin but he tells me he now bought a pair to walk at night.

I am with a friend in a metro station and he insists that we take the same train. I then follow him to his platform but see that his train is not intersecting any of the stops of my train. It is actually a new one and they serve chocolate inside but I anyway stick to my train and say farewell to him.

I am in a cafe with siting with an artist when my former American director also comes to sit with us. We now he is soon going to die but he hasn't been told. As we start talking he starts coughing and he admits that he is getting worry about it. We then understand that he is aware he is dying.

I am in the middle floor of our Dutch house and start to demolish the walls so as to build a barricade. The police is after me but one agent gets already up the stairs and I try to negotiate with him a truce before we start fighting. He agrees and everything is well again and I am left in peace.

I am walking in the countryside with my family when my partner tells me that she really feels now she wants to get a house out of the city. We then check a newly constructed wooden house and find that also the inside are completely made of a nice wood getting of a silver colour with time.

I am running on a crowded bike path feeling very athletic. I actually live in a dormitory and make it upstairs. One of my roommates is also an athlete and I try to greet him but he is very aggressive with me. I then push him out of the room and let him understand that I don't want any troubles.

I am on an old motorcycle with my daughter siting in the back. We are trying to get on a big road but only look to our right and as I turn left I see cars coming. I then keep on the emergency lane but even there a car is driving. I move to the right side of the road but a car is overtaking another.

I am in an ancient city and make it to the beach carrying some old metal rebars. It is quite crowded and I have to be careful not to injure anyone while looking for a guy. The latter told me exactly where to meet him but he is nowhere and I realize he could be in the sea kitesurfing.

I am with my oldest son in a pub and see three guys his age playing cards. We sit with them and notice that one of the guys keeps winning. He just gets two cards out and to find the winning joker but the third time he tries he only gets two normal cars and doesn't know what to do with them.

I am in a meadow telling a Romanian immigrant about the nice lakes we have in the Italian alps. I actually see some mountains in the distance and realize the lake is right in front of us. We then get in and I warn him that there are only rocks and no sand but we soon arrive on a little beach.

I am attending a political debate when a man decides to sing instead of talking. His voice is really beautiful and I get my camera out to film him but he stops singing and wants the public to use an harmonica to figure out the notes of the song he just sang. He leaves and I find it really boring.

I am on top of a bridge with German people having a party. They are all drinking bead but I just get a smoothie for myself and try to socialize with them. They are actually quite drunk and I feel awkward. I then just keep on a side and pour the smoothie down where they live under the bridge.

I am with my partner's father in a parking in front of a restaurant. We just stopped there to eat and then continue our journey but he insists that there could be thieves and we ought to empty the car. He then grabs the bed-sheets and pillow he just bought and I just cover mine with a blanket.

I am descending a hill with my parents when I see an ancient temple on our left we then stop to look at it and I show my stepfather a ruin that could have been a statue. He is not able to see it and I show him where I think the bathroom used to be. He then lays naked on it and starts peeing.

I am walking with a friend in an old city. It is actually all empty but there are some cars behind us. We then start running very fast and come to the water. There are some steps I jump and then an empty ferry before we can get on another ferry that is leaving. We reach it on time but it is full.

I am in a bus with the my mountain neighbour's younger son. He is actually flirting with a girl but the latter is getting off and I give him pen and paper to get her number. He then gets off with her but I realize that he is giving his number to her and I have an important sketch on that paper.

I am in a courtyard with a group of students. Their teacher lead us to an auditorium where I am supposed to present my work to them. They are marching as soldiers and as we arrive there there is still a video running of another lecture. The teacher turns it off but I am very curious to watch it.

I am in a small apartment siting on a sofa with two girls. They both one to cuddle but one of them is quite young and the other seems more my age. As I look at the latter in the face I realize that she is full of wrinkles and is in fact quite old. I want to take the distance from both but it is too late.

I am in a forest getting ready to perform a ritual when I hear my parents from a road below. I then wait for them to get higher but feel embarrassed to know they might be talking about me. As I don't want to hear them saying something negative I start to call them out loud until they reach me.

I am in our Dutch house with my mother scolding my sister for having spent all the family money to renovate her house. I had no idea about it and my mother tells me how my sister's husband was watching a program on television and started bidding some money to get their house renovated.

I am in a living room siting on the sofa with my partner while talking to our accountant. She is actually standing on the other side of a table while I tell her that finally I got some little jobs and I can start writing invoices. She is either way upset about me not making any money in the last year.

I am in a cafeteria when a rich girl starts talking to me from another table. She tells me that she is about to visit a mental hospital to protest against the patients there who are kept in chairs. She claims it is better for them to move and I agree with her but she get too embarrassed to continue.

I am driving our van with my children in the back. We are on a dirt road and it turns into a small path. I know other cars have made it through it and I continue even if there is another car parked next to where we have to turn. I manage really well but the new pat is even harder and steeper.

I am next to the cashier of an empty supermarket trying to play tennis but it is too tight. A girl want to play with me and we search inside a supermarket for a bigger place. We find the perfect one but there is too little light. We then start searching for the switch along the wall and girl kisses me.

I am walking with a friend on the street in front of our house. My daughter is sitting in the stroller even though she is already too big. We actually pass our Greek friends and realize they have a lot of friends. I don't care but I can see my daughter is very sad she cannot play with her daughter.

I am on the phone with the baker I am now working for. He finally has an answer to my question about anthropologists who wrote about stateless societies. He begins to report on what he has discovered but then gets confused and hangs up promising to call again with the right answer.

I am driving a jeep down the tunnels of a city. It is hectic and there are a lot of curves and new directions. I have no time to even look at my phone for the right directions and just keep on following me instinct. As it finally gets quiet again I check the phone and see that I am on the right road.

I am with my family outside a farm in the countryside when the mother of oldest son comes to take a walk with him. I also think of taking a walk with them and invite my girlfriend and m other kids to come along. It is very awkward but my ex wife and my partner manage to greet each other.

I am in the kitchen of our Dutch house washing the dishes but there is a black and white cow under the table and every time I approach the sink she comes to suck my clothes. I am really annoyed and I try to push her on one side and build a barricade with chairs but she comes the other way.

I am in a museum with my partner and her family. I actually find my dead American director checking a very ancient book. As I get close to him I realize it is talking about one of my ancestors. I want to know more about it but it is all written in German. I then try to take a picture of the text.

I am at an airport with an Indian guy and we take a cab together to the city. He is an inventor and wants to test a small robot he made. As the cab through the night drive the robot flies right in front until he detects another small robot attached on a pole. The latter is emitting a lot of radiations.

I am in an apartment with nothing to eat and follow a guy out to do grocery. It is dark and he actually takes me to a parking lot where he points a gun at people in their car and get their money. A lady is actually very brave and hold the gun. He then runs away and throws the money at me.

I am walking up a building with a contractor who is supposed to give m an estimate for the making on the staircase inside my ark. As I am about to tell him that my architect thinks it is too heavy we reach the top and sit with another contractor who will be changing an old lady's windows.

I am in an old city and realize that my partner has just bought an house there. She actually sold our house in the countryside and got this one instead. I then go check it and find that it is very much in the dark and is also standing next to a tower filled with dangerous mobile phone receivers.

I am strolling next to a river and find an old Italian friend sitting on a bench. It has been a long time since we haven't seen each other and he got two children. I then play with one of them and put him on the other side of a fence where there are wild horses but then take him back to us.

I am in the mountains with my children and their schoolmates. I then talk to some parents and show them a nice path going higher up. The view is gorgeous and I wish I could just walk up the pat myself but then realize that our children are already walking up alone and it can be dangerous.

I am on a street when I see my old Brazilian friend and his family arriving with a taxi. I then welcome them and he is very happy to see me but inside our house there are a lot of my partner's students and his partner gets quite upset. At last we manage to get the crowd out in the garden to eat.

I am with a man driving me and my family in a town between some high mountains and a big lagoon. I am interested to cross the latter with a boat but he takes us to a tower. There is a spiral staircase inside and I am too afraid to walk on it but my family tries it and it starts spinning very fast.

I am walking down to a metro station with my architect and feel quite embarrassed that he starts sliding on his butt. At the platform our train has just left and a conductor puts us together with other passengers. As I start singing a sad song they all begin to sing with me like if we were a choir.

I am in a square with a lot of homeless people. One of them is a woman with long hair and I listen to them sweeping the pavement as she moves next to me. There is also another homeless and he closes himself up in an abandoned shop after the people next to him start a vernissage in a gallery.

I am in a kitchen siting at a table and waiting for a girl to teach how to work with boiled wool. I can see her talking to another guy outside but finally she sits next to me and I show her how to make a knot with a lot of strings. As I free my hands she takes one and starts holding it on her lap.

I am walking in a park when my uncle call me. I then realize that my mother gave him my phone number to announce me the death of his in-laws. He wants to invite me to the funeral but before he does that I try to tell him that I am sorry about although I barely met them and we never talk.

I am in a small bedroom working on a desk and see that there are some candies left in a package. I find the quite disgusting and as I am about to bring them to my sister my mother rush in with her little daughter. She is full of pee and has to be changed but my mother cannot find any diapers.

I am in a prison with my partner and our Greek friend. He actually know a way out and takes us through a parking lot and to a river. In order to escape we would have to swim across it but I still have my camera on me and I go back to the prison compound to get a small plastic envelope for it.

I am traveling by bus through a valley but see that it is going up a mountain. It looks like it is a short detour but the mountain could be very high. It is actually only a hill and on the top there is a beautiful white church. As we get closer I see that it has been built in cave to be more protected.

I am walking with my spiritual friend through an old city and find a very modern square. There are some kids playing with their bike on the steps and my friend borrow one of their bikes to do some amazing stunts. He is so good that I propose to film him but there are too many kids watching.

I am in a gas station and meet my Dutch neighbours. They are also traveling home after the holidays and ask me to drive. I do so but then realize I don't have my phone on me and my family is still at the station. I then tell my neighbours to call her and let her know we can meet up on the way.

I am walking through my parents old village and find an abandoned house with a big pile of snow balls. An old couple is hiding in the garage and I start throwing the balls at them but the owners arrive and want me to clean up. As I do so they tell how expensive the whole village became.

I am with my best friend walking a long staircase up to a Norwegian community. We actually need to go through a ranch where there is a rodeo. My friend is very excited about the girls attending it and he starts pretending he is a street musician. I feel very ashamed about it and walk further.

I am running in a forest taking a long detour. My family just walked back the way we came but I want to be first and start running faster. There are a lot of roots and I have to jump over them. As I do so with one I realize that the path starts going downhill and I am actually flying in the air.

I am in a vegetable garden and an old lady tells me I can go up to a village to buy some strawberries. I then knock at a door and a man shows me that all his strawberries are already going bad. He gives me a bunch for very little money and I ask him if I can photograph him and his wife.

I am in my children's school with our cargo bike filled with envelopes. My youngest son wants to distribute them to his classmates but one of them insists that he should just get one himself. I then tell him off but the mother of another child is nearby and gets shocked about my behaviour.

I am in a park and see my Polish friend biking. I then greet him but he keeps on. He actually make the whole round of the park and reappears again. I then try to follow him and tell him to meet up some time but he is not willing. I notice he is wearing a white uniform and he is now an officer.

I am on a bus sitting next to the Indonesian driver. He is my children's teacher and tells me that I am the best father of all. I then start joking with the children sitting behind and begin to count them making many mistakes. They actually drew some tattoos on themselves and show them to me.

I am in an apartment with and get in my roommates' bedroom to pull up the curtains. I then see that one is meditating outside and just go to the kitchen where another is cooking peaches. He is also listening to a Swedish radio program and I am impressed on how advance the presenter talks.

I am in a field that has been just conquered by some Arab partisans. I walk with them across it but two Israeli soldiers start shooting at us. We then throw ourselves to the ground and I notice that they are fully protected and only have their necks exposed. I then ask for a rifle and kill them.

I am driving a car very fast on a highway. It is dark and there is ice on the road but I have to make it to conduct an investigation on a site but realize that I will have to get on another highway and it could be closed because of what happened there. I will need to prove that I am a detective.

I am biking through an empty village and manage to go down the staircase of the old church. I then reach the only road out with another biker but there are too many people walking. There is no way of making it through the crowd and I start watching people on throwing darts inside stands.

I am in mall and see a shop selling bathrooms. They have a pink one installed but I just explain to the owner that I only need a toilet. He then shows me a sink that can transform into a toilet when needed but the drain is too small. He then tells me he will have to exchange it for a bigger one.

I am at a crossing of a residential area with three girls I met on a dating site. They are all ugly but they all expect to meet me. I feel very awkward also because they all live on the same street and I just would like to go home but one of them lives by herself and invites me to eat at her place.

I am with my Dutch colleagues walking home from work. I live on the other side of town across the river but realize they all live on the wealthy side. Some of them just own a normal one but the last one leaves in a very fancy villa. I then wonder what makes them do the shitty work they do.

I am at a ski-resort with my old friends. The weather is bad and I convince them to drive to another resort that even has a Tibetan monastery on the top. I actually don't want to ski anymore and just get in the car and manage to park so that all the friends can get in and I can tell them my plan.

I am walking up a green valley trying to make it to my native highland. It is leading me up the wrong mountain and I turn around and start walking down. There is an Austrian girl going the same way and we walk together with a wolf howling in the distance. We then reach a village and I film it.

I am in my oldest son's farm and stand in a field where I wish to host a sculptural park. I could spend the whole summer there showing people around but then realize that in the summer my son's grandfather has his cows in the nearby field and they would certainly damage the sculptures.

I am in a school preparing a proposal I want to submit for a grant. Other students are working for it but realize that we need the license of the software we are using as the final step of the submission. I actually don't have a license and give it up just watching how much worse their works are.

I am in a train station with my children and get in an office to buy our tickets. The black man working there is kind and think my children are younger but I tell him their real age and get ready to pay for what I am supposed the full amount. He then gets my card but the machine is very slow.

I am inside the house of a curator friend where I am supposed to have dinner. It is too early and he is not home yet. I then just go to his wife and children and just mention that the weather is very nice outside. The wife interprets it as if we should have dinner outside and gets stressed.

I am at a conference in which various writers talk about my art project. One of them is famous and compares me to a melted ice-cream. I have no idea whether it is a positive comment but my partner says it is and my Greek friend comes to hug me and congratulate me as if it was a big deal.

I am in a big room with a lot of people attending a speech. A female presenter introduces a comedian with blond hairs sticking out of his head. He then joins a choir of Russian women and starts singing in English holding with one hand a puppet resembling one of these women but faceless.

I am on a dark road meeting some friends. We are actually going to spend the night together but I only have a sweater on. An Ukrainian friend then lend me his shirt and I put it on but then I realize that everyone is only wearing a t-shirt. They all look like punks and one has even big scars.

I am in a cafeteria down a basement with a girl who shows me two other girls. As they walk out she tells me that they have tried an experiment and rejected their citizenship. They are now considered as visitors but are having such a hard time to live that one of them has had second thoughts.

I am in a city with a bike filled with big fishes. As I get on it I realize they are still alive and I hurry home to put them in the fridge but a dog attacks me and starts holding my right hand with his teeth. As I reach a military parade he finally let go. I then check my hand and see that is swollen.

I am with my oldest son in a pub and notice a very coll graffiti depicting an anarchist woman. As we go outside we meet a Swedish artist friend and I ask him about it. He doesn't know anything but then I also notice that the same graffiti is outside and it invites people to share meals together.

I am attending a puppet show that is about to begin. My children are also there but get disappointed when they see that the puppet has changed. Soon after we find out that the puppeteer is the same and it gets very interesting to follow the story because it could tell about the other puppet.

I am walking inside the condominium where my parents live and find dog footprints everywhere. They are also on their door but then realize that the footprints lead to another apartment. As I enter inside my parents' apartment I realize that they are in bed together and I try to keep silent.